BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

CONGRESSMAN CASEY, Democrat, from Pennsylvania, says 5,000,000 men are idle in the United States, and government should invest the Treasury surplus in the Colorado Dam, regulating Mississippi floods, and supplying other work for the idle.

GOVERNMENT figures do not confirm Mr. Casey's 5,000,000 estimate.

But government money should build the Boulder Dam and make the Mississippi safe, not merely to provide work for the idle, of whom few can work in concrete and stone, but to do work that the nation needs.

AS for unemployment, that should be the government's principal business. The country owes no man a living, but does owe every man a chance to work.

In financial emergencies government helps through the federal reserve. That institution makes financial panics impossible.

Government should find a way to make labor panics impossible. Such panics are more important than financial panics, for they involve worry for mothers, and want for children.

GOV. AL SMITH of New York sets a good example, telling his representatives to report all possibilities of using public money in necessary public works to meet lack of employment.

Republicans should remember that they will be hearing from Mr. Smith next November.

CALIFORNIA is the country of original advertising and warnings. Approaching a bad turn at a railroad crossing you read, "Prepare to meet thy God."

A restaurant sign says, "Two places to eat, here and home."

Intelligent Mrs. B., who observes as she goes, reports this sign on the way to the Huntington Hotel in Pasadena, "Two things to hang, Hickman and our wallpaper."

SUCH advertising, except the religious one, is bad advertising, taking your mind from the thing advertised. Reference to Hickman the murderer takes the mind off wallpaper.

SECRETARY HOOVER'S statement on prohibition must not be interpreted as expressing satisfaction with prohibition as it is. Mr. Hoover says the "great social and economic experiment, noble in motive—must be worked out CONSTRUCTIVELY."

Room for improvement is suggested in that word CONSTRUCTIVELY.

At present, unfortunately, with bootleggers, hijackers, drug fiends, well organized crime and wholesale bribery of officials, prohibition works out organized DESTRUCTIVELY.

KING AMANULLAH of Afghanistan owns a flying machine, carrying nine passengers, pilot and radio operator.

One machine for a "dummy" king of Afghanistan means nothing. But 10,000 faster machines, owned by Asiatics that once traveled westward on little ponies, might mean a great deal to western Europe and this well-satisfied continent.

AUTOMOBILE speed contests, with blazing cars plunging or rolling into the ocean, do not help the motor industry or sell cars. Racing cars are specially built, and represent no article for sale. They attain speeds worthless in real motoring. And what is more important to manufacturers, they frighten fathers and mothers who say, "I would not want my children to have a car of that kind."

CITY, COUNTY NEGOTIATING JAIL CONTRACT

Agreement Probably Will Provide Charge of 75 Cents Per Day

EXPECT SETTLEMENT

Commissioners Express Willingness To Credit City's Claim of $1,300

Negotiations expected to result in definite settlement of the controversy between city and county officials over the board of city prisoners at the Marion County Jail are now under way with likelihood of all differences between the contending forces being itched out early next week.

This was indicated today at the office of Marion County Commissioners, where a jail board contract is now being drawn up for submission to City Council.

The contract, it is stated, will probably provide that the city shall pay the county 75 cents a day for each prisoner housed at the jail. This will apply to all those sent to the jail for violation of city ordinances.

Under the present system of feeding boarders at the jail, the cost has averaged 16.8 cents per meal, or 50.4 a day. The difference between that figure and the 75-cent rate to be charged the city is to cover cost of heat, light and other jail expenses, the commissioners state.

Near Compromise

In addition to arranging for this contract, which will take care of future jail accommodations for the city, an agreement has practically been reached

PHYSICIAN WILL GET LIFE TERM IN PRISON

Thread Leads to Conviction of Doctor in Murder of Woman

Los Angeles, Feb. 25—A slender, yellow thread served as a mute but telling piece of evidence pointing to the guilt of Dr. Charles M. McMillan, it was disclosed today by members of the jury which found the retired physician and former convict guilty of first degree murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Amelia Appleby, wealthy widow of a Chicago inventor.

The thread, introduced as evidence in court, had been stitched on the canvas bag which contained the dead body of the widow. The gruesome bundle was found in a lonely San Fernando meadow last Christmas and gave rise to the "sack murder" mystery, solution of which came with the verdict of guilty returned yesterday by a jury of eight women and four men in Judge Douglas Edmond's superior court.

A fragment of thread, corresponding in color and fiber, was later found in Mrs. Appleby's apartment, where the woman is believed to have been beaten. This corresponding piece of thread also was stitched on a piece of canvas. It was this similarity between the two pieces of thread that swayed the jury in its decision more than any other factor, according to six of the women jurors.

Dr. McMillan was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence. The jury deliberated for 65 minutes. Accompanying its verdict of guilty was a recommendation that life imprisonment be the sentence.

The doctor will be sentenced next Tuesday.

MAY VOTE ON PLAN

Senate Will Discuss Muscle Shoals Next Week

Washington, Feb. 25—A final vote on the Norris plan for government operation of the great $100,000,000 Muscle Shoals power project may be reached in the senate next week, it was indicated today by administration leaders.

Still predicting adoption of his plan, Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, the insurgent leader, based his fight on the ground that the Muscle Shoals plant can not be used to manufacture fertilizer cheap enough to aid American farmers. His plan would dispose of Muscle Shoals as a power project and utilize the proceeds to establish fertilizer plants in other parts of the country, particularly near coal mines where power could be obtained at low cost.

MRS. BUSCH DIES

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 25—Mrs. Lily Busch, widow of Adolphus Busch, millionaire brewer of St. Louis, who established the famous Busch sunken gardens of Pasadena, died today at her home here. She was born in 1844.

At the bedside when death came were four children of Mrs. Busch, August Busch, Mrs. Charles Greenough, of New York, Mrs. J. W. Loeb of Chicago, and Mrs. Edward Faust; two other children, Mrs. Edward Sharrer and Mrs. Paul Von Goutard, live in Germany.

Motor World Rocked by Reports That Lindbergh Tested Fuelless Engine; Prospects of Revolutionizing Transportation Are Seen

Demonstration Is Made at Selfridge Field; Major Lanphier Aids

Invention Belongs to Pittsburgh Man and Has Been Carefully Veiled

Motor Is Said To Be Based on Principle of Electro-Magnetism

DETROIT, Feb. 25—Prospect of revolutionizing air, land and sea transportation with a fuelless motor based on the principle of electro magnetism as applied to the rotary motion of the earth was seen today following Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's reported test of a motor of this type at Selfridge Field yesterday.

Lindbergh and Maj. Thomas G. Lanphier hopped off today for Mitchel Field where they will discuss the invention with representatives of the Guggenheim Foundation.

Mrs. Lindbergh, mother of the famous flier, also is to start this morning on her flight to Boston where she will be honored by an educational society.

The motor invention has been carefully veiled. The report from Selfridge Field today was that it had been tested yesterday with Colonel Lindbergh and Major Lanphier in attendance. Neither Lindbergh nor Lanphier confirmed the report.

Announcement that such a motor had been actually tested was a complete surprise. Knowledge of the existence of two-foot model of the motor has been current for some time. Its inventor is Lester J. Hendershot, of Pittsburgh, a free-lance experimenter in motive power. His backer is said to be D. Barr Peat, also of Pittsburgh, manager of the Bettis Field airport there.

Hendershot is credited with several successful electrical inventions, two of which he has sold to the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.

He exhibited his model several weeks ago to friends. A layman pronounced it:

"Something like an earth induction motor and the nearest thing to perpetual motion. It's sort of a magnet arrangement which in a general way would pull on the rear of an airplane and make it fly. It is supposed to run on an electro-magnetic principle applied to the rotation of the earth on its axis."

At that time Hendershot obtained 1,800 revolutions a minute from the model. This was said to have been duplicated at Selfridge Field yesterday, with Lindbergh and Lanphier watching the motor run.

Hendershot and Peat have been in the neighborhood of Detroit for about three weeks, making their headquarters at Selfridge Field, where they have been in conference with army engineers.

Whether Lindbergh's visit at this time had been pre-arranged with the inventor has not been determined but the "Lone Eagle" was said to be actively interested in the Hendershot invention.

His purpose in hopping off this morning for the New York air

BURGLARS FAIL TO GET $1,400 IN LOCAL SAFE

Unable To Open Door After Hammering Combination at Slanser Lumber Co.

Unable to open the door after battering off the combination, sledge hammer safe crackers, last night on their third visit to Marion this month, were forced to pass up $1,400 in cash in the safe at the Slanser Lumber Co., N. Greenwood-st.

So badly damaged was the locking device that it required three hours work on the part of Attorney James H. Eymon, local safe expert, to get the door open.

Operating in a large vault in which the safe is located, the burglars worked without danger of detection. It is believed that they were not frightened away before completing the job, but that they gave up, when, after breaking off the combination knob they were unable to open the door.

Discovers Attempt

The attempted robbery was discovered by Walter Shealey, a yard man, when he reported for work this morning. Finding a rear window of the office open, he investigated.

The door of the vault was not locked, it was stated at the office this morning and the yeggs had experienced no difficulty in getting to the safe. Several photographs of finger prints were taken by Police Sergeant Wertz.

The attempted robbery was the third visit of safe crackers this month. More than $500 was taken from the safe at the billiard room conducted by Abel & Wroten in the National City Bank & Trust Co. building on Thursday night and more than $150 was taken from the cigar and magazine store conducted by H. L. Beach on W. Center-st on Feb. 9.

SQUIRE, CONSTABLE UNDER $5,000 BONDS

Charged with Obstructing Heaston, Federal Officer, in His Duty

Urbana, Feb. 25—Magistrate J. W. Flaugher and Constable William Bradley, are at liberty under bond of $5,000 each here today following their arraignment at Springfield before U. S. Commissioner Hudson, late yesterday, on charges of obstructing a federal officer.

The federal officer is William Heaston, Lima, federal prohibition agent, who was arraigned in Flaugher's court on charges of fraud, breaking into a private residence and assault. Heaston was bound to the Champaign County Grand Jury, despite advices from Federal Court authorities at Columbus, it is said.

The charges are the outgrowth of a raid conducted by Heaston on the place of Theodore Frazer, Lima.

REJECTS DECREASE

Reduction on Coal Freight Rates by Railroads Denied

Washington, Feb. 25—The proposal of railroads to reduce freight rates 20 cents a ton on coarload shipments of bituminous coal from southern mines to lake ports, for trans-shipment to the northwest was denied by the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

The commission held the reduction was not justified.

The proposed reduction would have applied to shipments from mines in southern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, east Tennessee, and southwestern Virginia.

AUSTRALIAN PILOT LANDS PLANE SAFELY

Melbourne, Australia, Feb. 25—Bert Hinkler, Australian pilot forced down yesterday while making a flight from Port Darwin to Cloncurry, arrived safely today at Camooweal.

He was given an enthusiastic reception by the residents.

Hinkler recently landed at Port Darwin after flying from England in 16 days. He is on his way to Queensland to visit his mother.

BUSINESS RECORD IS BETTER DURING 1927

Dividend Payments Increase on Industrials, Railroads and Street Railways Over 1926

Washington, Feb. 25—In some respects the American business record last year was even more impressive than that of the high peaks established in 1926, according to a compilation of statistics made at the Commerce Department today.

While production activity slumped off towards the close of the year, interest and dividend payments amounted to $4,751,460,000, a gain of more than $300,000,000 from 1926. Industrial establishments reported dividends of $722,276,000, steam railroads $349,500,000 and street railways $124,680,000.

Despite the fact that national newspaper advertising in the late fall was falling behind that of the year before, gains at the end of the year brought the total to 320,500,000 lines, practically the same as in 1926. Heavy Christmas holiday advertising evidently was responsible.

Issuance of stocks and bonds of corporations amounted to $7,301,300,000, about $2,000,000,000 ahead of the preceding year. Foreign loans were $1,660,000,000, several hundred million greater, indicating, along with increased savings deposits in banks that despite some recession there was plenty of money on hand for productive investment. In domestic corporate issues gains were made in all industrial lines except oil and building.

KASCHOLK WILL TESTIFY FOR DEFENSE AT CANTON

Canton, Feb. 25—Steve Kascholk, one of the chief witnesses in the Don Mellett murder trials, was in Canton today to testify for the defense in the civil service proceedings against former Police Captain Ben E. Clarke.

Although Kascholk was considered somewhat of a "mystery witness," Atty. Bernard Rodgers, Clarke's lawyer, says he has some important information to aid the dismissed policeman when the city seeks to have removal from the payroll due to charges filed against him to conduct undercover work on officer.

The city also is seeking recovery of sum collected by Clarke for 14 months

G.O.P. RACE IN OHIO ON WITH CANDIDATES IN

Willis, Hoover and Ross Qualify for Entrance in Primaries

Columbus, Feb. 25—With their declarations of candidacy on file today with Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Olin J. Ross, Columbus attorney, have qualified for entrance in the Ohio presidential preference primaries to be held April 24. All three are candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

Announcement was made today at the secretary of state's office that no candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination had qualified for a presidential preference vote in the Buckeye State.

Opportunity for filing such declarations expired at midnight last night. The Ohio election laws prohibit the filing of such declarations after Feb. 24.

Complete lists of candidates for delegates-at-large, alternates-at-large, and congressional district delegates and alternates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions to be held next summer have been filed by Willis, Hoover and Democratic leaders of their respective campaigns in Ohio. Ross did not enter the G. O. P. contest for delegates.

Each Has 102 Names

Ohio Republican voters on April 24 will be presented with a primary ballot consisting of the names of 102 Willis candidates and 102 Hoover candidates from which will be chosen the Ohio delegation to the Republican national convention to be held in Kansas City, Mo., next June. Entitled to 51

ENGLAND OR FRANCE MAY MEDIATE FIGHT

Breach Between Italy and Austria Growing Serious, Reports State

Vienna, Feb. 25—Unless the League of Nations acts to heal the breach between Italy and Austria the Austrian government may ask either England or France to mediate the quarrel, it was learned from an authoritative source this afternoon.

Signor Auriti, the Italian envoy, has been recalled by his government. His return to Vienna is uncertain.

The Austrian government, meanwhile, is watchfully and anxiously awaiting the next developments.

The general opinion here is that, while diplomatic relations have not been completely severed, the Austro-Italian crisis is very serious and is capable of growing into a situation which may menace the peace of Central Europe.

Although Premier Mussolini, of Italy, resents interference in Italian affairs by the League of Nations, as was shown at the time of Italy's dispute with Greece, Austrians will expect aid from the league if the Italian attitude becomes more threatening and aggressive.

The trouble grew out of statements in the Austrian parliament that Italians were abusing German speaking residents of South Tyrol.

SETS BACK DATE FOR GAS RATE HEARING

Commission Complies with Request of Logan Company's Attorneys

Complying with a request by counsel for the company, the State Utilities Commission today postponed until March 2, its hearing, originally scheduled for Feb. 28, relative to the question whether the Logan Gas Co. has a valid right to make application now for approval of increased rates in cities, villages and Ohio localities which have protested to the commission against the company's previous increased rate schedule.

At the hearing, the commission will listen to oral argument for and against the contention of counsel for the protestants that the company has no legal right, in view of a decision of the Ohio Supreme Court, to file new schedules while the commission is conducting its present investigation relative to the protests against the former rate schedule.

The gas company a few days ago asked the commission to approve temporary increased rates applicable to the 18 protesting cities, villages and other places, pending determination of the present investigation.

RUNNING GUN BATTLE STAGED AFTER HOLDUP

Sextet Makes Getaway with $100,000, Outdistancing Police in Rain of Bullets

BLAST HEARD FOR MILES

Daring Crime Occurs at Evergreen Park, Ill., on Payroll Train

Evergreen Park, Ill., Feb. 25—Blasting a baggage coach on a Grand Trunk railroad train here today, six bandits armed with sawed off shotguns escaped with money officially announced as totaling $100,000 after a running gun battle with police.

Police rushed to the scene and battled with the bandits who escaped in an automobile. The bandit car outdistanced the police machine.

Hundreds of motorists were in the path of the many bullets fired by police and bandits.

The blast of dynamite which almost wrecked the train was heard for miles about.

The train, No. 10, of the Grand Trunk, left Chicago at 7:45 a. m. for Port Huron, Mich.

The bandits gained entrance to the coach and commanded the baggage and mail clerks to line up on the outside of the train. A powerful dynamite charge was set at the end of the coach. With a deafening explosion which completely wrecked the car, the blast went off, showering the bandits and train crew with miscellaneous sacks containing shipments of currency for three large industrial plants.

One sack, consigned from the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago to the National Bank of Harvey, Ill., contained $60,000, officials announced. Another sack, consigned from the First National Bank of Chicago to the Bank of Harvey contained $40,000, bank officials stated.

Cover Engine Crew

As the train came to a halt two bandits stepped to the engine and covered the engineer and fireman with shotguns, ordering them to step down. Employes in the baggage and mail cars were covered likewise. When one inquisitive baggageman poked his head from the door he was greeted with a splattering of bullets over his head.

Hundreds of passengers sought to leave the coaches, terror-stricken, but were prevented by the other bandits who fired round after round of bullets at the sides of the coaches.

The leader of the bandits, all of whom were dressed in yellow raincoats and hunting boots, apparently a middle Political fireworks are now ready to be touched off in Marion County and other counties of the Eighth Congressional District following filing of delegates and alternate entry lists for the presidential preference primary to be held on April 24.

When the filing time expired last night, complete lists of state convention candidates for Marion County were in the hands of the Marion County Board of Elections, with both Republicans and Democrats represented.

National Slates

In addition to the state convention lists, the local elections board received declarations of candidacy from three residents of the county who are on the national convention slates of the eighth district.

These are Henry B. Hane, who seeks election as a Hoover delegate to the national convention, John H. Clark, candidate for alternate pledged to support Frank B. Willis for the presidency, and Frank Wiedemann, Democratic alternate pledged to support Atlee Pomerene.

These names will be certified by the Marion County Board of Elections to other counties in the district. Other candidates on the district slates filed their entries in their home counties and their names will be certified to the local board.

War Department Completing Plans for Motorization of Cavalry Units

Washington, Feb. 25—The last stronghold of the horse in America—the army unit—has fallen before the irresistible advance of machinery and the gasoline motor.

The War Department today announced a program to motorize cavalry units as rapidly as personnel can be trained.

Following an intensive general staff study of the influence of mechanical units upon the fundamental principles of tactics and strategy, the first armored car unit has been placed in the field at Ft. Marion County to Participate in Good Will Demonstration

PLANS WILL BE MADE MARCH 9

Nation-Wide Observance Arranged as Gesture of Friendliness Toward Mexico

Plans will be formulated for Marion County's participation in a nation-wide demonstration of good will toward the people of Mexico, at a meeting of at least two representatives of each church, school and organization in the county interested in the project, at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, March 9 in the junior room of Epworth M. E. Church, it was announced today.

The work is sponsored nationally by the Committee on World Friendship Among Children and in this state is under direction of the Woman's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches. "Friendship school bags" of a special design emblematic of their good will intent are to be sent with gifts from the children of the U. S. to those of Mexico, the bags being obtained through the Ohio C. of C.

To Explain Project

Rev. H. E. Beckler, field secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches, will further explain the project at the meeting on March 9, when work will be begun under the direction of a committee consisting of Mrs. J. W. Hungate, Mrs. S. C. Burs, Mrs. Lewis Uhl, Mrs. A. W. Gracely and Mrs. H. K. Henderson.

This is the second good will project sponsored by the national committee and directed by the state group in Ohio. Last year Japanese children were the recipients of 18,000 "doll messengers of friendship" sent in the same manner and distributed through the public schools of that nation at the annual Japanese festival of dolls. Fifty large dolls, garbed in Japan's best silk, bought with penny contributions of Japanese school children recently arrived in America as return friendship visitors and are touring the country for exhibition purposes. Ohio supplied 2,500 of the 18,000 dolls sent to Japan, leading all other states.

The school bags supplied with small gifts of the American senders, will be distributed in Mexico through the public schools under direction of the National Department of Education on Mexican Independance Day, Sept. 16, 1928, making the patriotic exercises on that occasion assume an aspect of international friendship.

TWO CHURCHES PLAN REVIVAL SERVICES

Evangelistic Campaigns Scheduled at Central Christian, Forest Lawn Presbyterian

Tentative arrangements have been made by respective pastors, Rev. George E. Groves and Rev. John A. Carriker, for opening of revival services in the near future at Central Christian and Forest Lawn Presbyterian Churches.

Both churches will open evangelistic campaigns on Sunday, March 4, the Presbyterian revival to continue for two weeks. Services will be held each night at 7:30 o'clock except Saturday at the latter church.

Assisting the pastor will be Rev. Frederick Cromer, Presbyterian pastor from Upper Sandusky, who will preach here Monday and Tuesday nights, March 5 and 6, Rev. James M. Fisher, pastor of Lee Street Presbyterian Church, who will preach Thursday and Friday nights, March 8 and 9. Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, will preach during the closing week at several services.

Reverend Groves will be assisted with the services at Central Christian Church by Rev. A. B. Robertson, who has been pastor of the First Christian Church at Ashland for 13 years. The music will be in charge of E. C. Tuckerman of Huntington, W. Va., who now is assisting with a revival near Youngstown.

What Think Ye?

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. G. D. KNEPPER,
Pastor, First Church of Christ.

"WHAT think ye of the Christ?" A question which is becoming increasingly paramount every day. And to those who are carefully watching the "trend of the times," it becomes more and more apparent. It is a question all of us need to seriously ask ourselves, often.

Simon Peter said of Jesus—"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Such a belief acknowledges a Supreme Being who is a real personality and it also admits as fundamental facts, the fall of man, his utter powerlessness to save himself, that Jesus is the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world," etc.

Bishop Brown expresses his belief -a belief shared by an amazingly large number of people today, with multitudes more traveling rapidly toward it—as follows: "From the viewpoint of the self-styled 100 per cent Christians I am a betrayer of Jesus because I do not believe that he ever had any existence as a God at any time and that, if he was at any time a man, the world does not now and never can know of one thing that He did or of one word that He said."

Bishop Brown's conclusion is the logical product of the present-day loose thinking in regard to Jesus. Any deviation from Peter's noble conviction is dangerous and will eventually—in many cases—lead to substantially the Bishop's unbelief. "What think ye of the Christ?" Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh shall He find faith on the earth?"

WITH THE STAR STAFF

AMONG the various staple superstitions of the world there is none that has survived so sturdily nor reached such international proportions as the belief that there is something decidedly bad about the number 13.

When it is considered that as a group of people, stage and motion picture stars are the most superstitious beings in existence, imagine the consternation in Universal City when it was suddenly discovered that among the 13 players in the motion picture, "The Cat and the Canary", more than half of the starring cast had exactly 13 letters in their names. Inasmuch as this particular picture deals with quite a number of popular, or unpopular as the case may be, superstitions, including a fine, large black cat and the action takes place at midnight there was a good deal of controversy and much speculation about what might happen to the cast before the picture was complete.

Those most concerned formed a club of investigation to ascertain just how unlucky this number might be. The stars whose membership to this club became possible by reason of the alleged unlucky number of letters in their names follow: Laura La Plante, Creighton Hale, Arthur Ed. Carew, Tully Marshall, Florabel Finch, George Sigmann, Forest Stanley and Joseph Murphey.

It was discovered that the superstition of 13 being an unlucky number goes away back to antiquity. Nostradamus when he first began to enumerate his saving of bones found that 13 was not much of a number. He couldn't divide it. It was difficult to handle. So he placed the stamp of disapproval upon it.

The first concrete evidence, however, of the alleged unluckiness of 13 is found in Norse mythology. It seems there were 12 good gods in the paradise of Valhalla. Then one day along came another one who called himself a god. This was Loki. The other 12 gods were all good and kind. Loki was an evil genius. The good gods did not fraternize with Loki any more than they could help. Finally came the annual dinner of the gods in Valhalla. Plates were set for 12. When the dinner was under way Loki came along and was much put out that he hadn't been included in the festivities. He forthwith shot Baldus, the Scandanavian god of love, with a mistleto arrow. Thus originated the superstition that to sit down to eat with 13 at the table was a decidedly unlucky instance. It was held that the first one to leave the board would surely suffer some dire calamity before the end of the year in which the feast occurred.

On the other side of the ledger the investigators found that many famous men have had thirteen letters in their names. Among these and probably the best known is the late Richard Wagner. It is also coincident that he produced 13 great operas and that if the numbers in the year of his birth are added together they will total 13.

The extent to which this superstition has reached is almost unbelievable. In France the number is strictly taboo. There are no streets by that number, no houses numbered 13, no thirteenth floors in buildings and no railroad berths or hotel rooms of that number. There is a professional organization there known as "fourteens" the members of which make a good living by holding themselves in readiness to be the fourteenth guest at banquets at a moment's notice. Folks in France will not sit down to eat with 13 at table.

As far as "The Cat and the Canary" is concerned the superstition did not seem to affect this picture adversely. It is numbered among the five biggest screen hits of the year. It will play at the Grand three days starting Monday.

Kerry to Play in "Tide of Empire"

NEWS OF MOVIES IN CINEMA CAPITAL

BY LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Star Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25—Norman Kerry will brighten the corners of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios once again. I say brighten the corners, for Mr. Kerry's gaiety and merriment when he played opposite Lillian Gish in her "Annie Laurie" picture, is even now discussed.

He is back at M.-G.-M. again. This time to play the male lead in "Tide of Empire," Cosmopolitan's epic based on Peter B. Kyne's story. I don't wish to give the impression that Mr. Kerry's happy-go-lucky manner had anything to do with his new job. He is one of the most popular romantic actors in the films. Needless for me to say, people don't get jobs for their ability to amuse.

Joan Crawford has been named as leading lady and Al Rogell as director.

Apropos of Joan, I wonder if she is learning the value of publicity. Nearly every day some story of her engagement or possible marriage to young Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is mentioned, always followed by a commentary on matrimony by the Crawford girl.

HELEN OF TROY leaves Hollywood today. Talking in plain language Maria Corda, who created the Spartan vamp in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" has accepted an offer to make a picture for the British International Film Company under the supervision of Victor Sadille.

Miss Corda's decision is interesting and somewhat unexpected. After her appearance in the First National film, a modern version of Helen's domestic difficulties, everyone thought Miss Corda would be given a big starring part.

But Miss Corda was not signed in Hollywood, a surprising fact in view of the apparent preference for foreign talent.

THERE will be no trouble for Edmund Lowe to keep an eye on Lilyan Tashman these next few weeks or vice versa. Lilyan has been signed by Edmund Golding to do her worst in Collen Moore's next picture, "Tomorrow."

I have already told you Edmund Lowe, her husband, plays opposite Colleen.

THE most inexhaustible theme in the movies is the World War. I don't believe there is any angle of this recent conflict that hasn't been screened. One would think the scenario writers' skill would be taxed to the utmost to try to get something different.

That is one reason all the best writers in filmland have been recruited when there is a war drama in the offing. Bess Meredyth, for instance, has been commissioned by First National to write the adaption of "Out of the Ruins."

This "Out of the Ruins," powerfully written for the Cosmopolitan Magazine by Sir Phillip Gibbs, will star Richard Barthelmess. It is his next picture and one that is to be produced with the background of war. There should be something else, too, for Sir Phillip Gibbs does not confine his story to booming cannons and trench battles.

THE foreign element has been raising such ructions over the influence of American customs, clothes and scenery that Warne Brothers are planning to make a few pictures on German and English soil. Darryl Francis Zanuck, the youthful general manager of Warner Brothers, who arrived home this week from a foreign jaunt, announces that negotiations are now on for a German studio and that he and Jack Warner have arranged for the production of three pictures in England.

That ought to appease some of the longhairs who have lamented loudly and often that England and Germany and France and Italy and a few other countries were imitating our American manners.

The chief objection, according to those who have made a study of the situation, is their fear that their own people will become Americanized.

I believe I stated sometime ago that Warner Brothers are looking for a musical comedy to be produced with the Vitaphone. Well, they seem to have landed it in "No, No, Nanette," which I hear whispered will be made very shortly.

$11,000,000 WORTH OF LIVESTOCK HANDLED

Columbus, Feb. 25—More than $11,000,000 worth of livestock was handled by the markets in 42 Ohio counties last year, according to a report made public at a recent meeting of the Ohio Livestock Cooperative Association here.

This vast sum of money represents some 58,860 tons of stock marketed. The markets in these 42 counties handled 72,474 individual shipments comprising 409,363 hogs, 15,012 heaves, 38,990 calves and 141,396 sheep.

The year just closed—1927—was the most successful and outstanding in the life of the Ohio Livestock markets and subsidiary units, the report declared.

Increased trucking service, better receiving conditions, and more handling and marketing facilities were in evidence for the livestock trade in the past year than any year hitherto, the report said.

DIRCKS' NAME NOT TO BE ON BALLOTS

Columbus, Feb. 5—The name of Charles Dircks, Sandusky, will not appear on the Ohio presidential preferential ballots at the April primaries, it was ruled here today by Secretary of State Brown.

Dircks, who filed as a Republican, Brown pointed out, was granted his naturalization papers, Oct. 4, 1880, while our national laws require that the president shall be born under the United States flag.

Brown also pointed out that Dircks had not complied with Ohio electoral laws which require the signatures of five electors.

Dircks recently announced himself as a candidate on the platform of "regular delivery of beers and wines to homes —just as the dairyman delivers milk."

MERLE CARR BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

Agosta Man Pleads Guilty to Charge of Burglarizing De Cliff Store

Merle Carr, 33, of Agosta, pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary when arraigned before Probate Judge L. B. McNeal, yesterday afternoon, and was bound over to the grand jury under bond of $1,000. He was returned to the county jail where he will be held until the next grand jury session in May in the event that he is unable to furnish bond.

Carr was placed under arrest Thursday morning after Sheriff Deal searched his home at Agosta and reported finding merchandise which had been stolen from the G. G. Miller general store in De-Cliff, Wednesday night.

Carr signed a written confession later in the day at the office of Prosecuting Attorney Wiedemann, Sheriff Deal states.

The Miller store was burglarized three times in the last two months but the robbery of Wednesday night is the only one to which Carr has confessed. He denies having been implicated in the two other jobs.

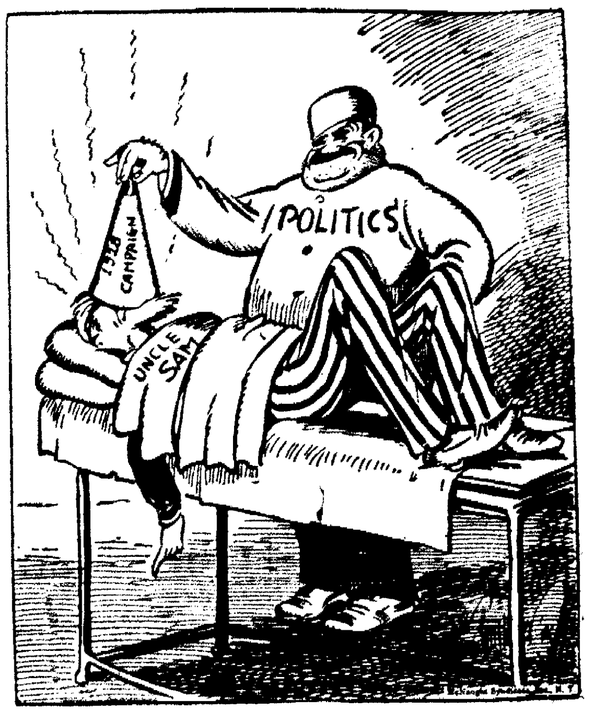
Gas Is Bad Part

Hoover Owes Everything in Life to Fact He Doesn't Look Like or Act Like a Politician

BY WILL ROGERS



The gas they give you is the worst part of it.

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers. Its going to be awful hard to keep Politics from creeping into the news from now on. We have various pestilences every once in a while, and we have floods, but the only advertised and known calamity is our elections. We got one coming on and there is no use denying it. We just as well harden ourselves to it. Its just like an operation. The anistetic, or whatever you call the gas they give you.

Gas Is the Worst

Why that is the worst part of it. An election without all the gasses wouldent be so bad, but its these weeks of slowly putting you under the influence. That is the trying part of an election. So we just might as well start steeling our system to it. Hoover, who has for months wore his hat at a rakish angle, finally just took it off, took good aim at the middle of the ring and hit it the first throw. So now that uncertainty is over we can commence to get our bearings. Hoover had the jump on all the other Candidates for popular support and it would have been pretty tough to got all worked up about him and then he had said, "I don't anticipate running," or any one of those double-barrelled epigrams. But now that he has consented to, why that lifts a big load off the proffessional worriers.

But watch the politicians start gnashing their tusks. You know Hoover owes everything he is in life to the fact that he has never done one thing like a politician. In fact the records dont show that he has ever even spoken to one. You see they want to get some old boy that has worked up from maby State Legislature, then Senator, then Governor, or U. S. Senator. They figure that he knows where to hand out the offices where they will do "The Boys" the most good. But with "Herbert" he is just liable to appoint some capable man. You cant tell what fool things like that he would do.

Say, Young John D. Rockefeller kinder jarred the oil boys dident he? He has the idea that the business can be run at a profit and still keep it off the front pages, and out of the Senate investigation room. It seemed rather a novelty to have a man testifying before the Senate that would tell them what they wanted to know. I wouldent doubt that they would keep him as a regular testifies about everything, for all the others refuse to answer for fear it will be used against them later when they come to trial.

Hickman All Tied

Well, we tried that fellow Hickman out here, and when we had him all tied and ready to convict, why the Judge said, "You the Jury are to pass on his sanity, and not on his guilt," so they went out and come back and said he "was sane." So now they are going to try him again for killing some man. When they start to try him on that charge we may find at the finish that we were trying him on something else. I havent got sense enough to know whether our criminal court procedure is broken down, or lame or limping or whatever they say of it or not, but something sure is cuckoo when it takes seven years to hang two fellows after they are convicted, and all this time to convict one after he has confessed.

It looks like after a person's guilt in this country is established, why then the battle as to whether he should be punished is the real test of the court. Of course if a fellow is never convicted and never confesses, why then they will hang him. But if he is lucky enough to get convicted or confess why he has a great chance of coming clear.

At the Havana Pan American Conference some South American Nation suggests taking up something vital, and the American delegation arises and makes a very tactful speech in which they state that "That question was not on the 'Agenda,' and shouldent be discussed here."

Not On the Slate

Then some one will suggest that "They all sign a pledge that they won't ever invade each others country," and poor Mr. Hughes will have to arise and diplomatically say, "I am sorry Gentlemen but that question is not on the Agenda." Well the poor South Americans will disband and go back to their botels and start thinking up something else to discuss, and when they drag it into the meeting they run afoul of the same countersign, "That question is not on the Agenda." The poor devils are cuckoo trying to find something that is on the "Agenda."

They have been there eight weeks and they have done nothing but form Committes, and then that Committee would form a Sub committee, and the sub-committee would form an advisory Committee, and they have just Committe'd their self to death. In years to come the question will be asked by some fond child of its Father who was a Deligate to the Havana Conference, "What did you do Father at the big Conference?"

"Why I was the fellow that thought of all the different names of all the different Committees, if it hadent been for me they wouldent have known what to call their Committees, and if they hadent had names for the Committees the Conference would have been a failure, for forming Committees was the sole accomplishment of the Conference."

The Argentine wants lower tariff on beef. Mr. Hughes told him. "Why we can't settle any tariff question. Our Senate and Congress have been trying to agree on that for 150 years, so the best way for you to get your beef in is to smuggle it in. The people bringing in liquor seem to be doing all right. They have best the tariff."

Tariff on Marines

Nicaragua, San Domingo and Hayti want to put a tariff on imported Marines. But what does anybody elses tariffs mean to us when we want to send something in? It's on the Agenda if we are looking to do anything, but its NOT on the Agenda if they want to bring something in. But they are liable to work something out of it. Mr. Hughes is about the shrewdest 'hombre' we have. He was born in the Chairman's chair of a public gathering, weaned on diplomatic discussions, and grew to a ripe old age attending International Conferences, so in the words of the famous Gene Buck, "give the kid a chance."

PERFORMANCE
as different as the car itself

Were greater beauty their only advantage, the new engineering principles of Dodge Brothers Victory Six would still be epochal and revolutionary.

Were greater safety The Victory's only advantage, it would still command the gratitude of a life-loving world.

Were greater economy its paramount feature, the fact would still remain that The Victory has made possible 21 miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour FOR A SIX.

But these are incidental to the basic Victory achievement. You must DRIVE the car to know about that!

Victory design is unlike that of any other vehicle in the world—and Victory performance is equally radical and remarkable.

To examine the one and experience the other will prove an event that we urge you not to postpone.

All the non-skid devices in the world are no good if not in use when needed most. How often have you said, "I'll put on chains today" and neglected it?

How many times have you been without them and compelled to drive over slippery streets with smooth tires besides, until you could get to some convenient place for putting on the chains?

You can't outguess the weather all the time. It's risky business and you are apt to forget or try to get by with smooth tires when true economy advises new ones.

The non-skids of new Dual Grip Generals are there on your car all the time — all winter long, day and night, showing no appreciable wear through the whole cold season and they'll still be practically new for summer driving.

When you need non-skid most you have it with Dual Grip Generals.

BANDITS BLAST CAR AND TAKE PAYROLL

Running Gun Battle Staged with Police, Who Are Outdistanced

aged man, directed the actions of the others. He ordered Chief Clerk Charles Peters and his assistant, Joe Kelly, to lie down on the floor of their car. The men were bound with ropes as the other bandits set the dynamite charge.

Dress as Hunters

Dynamite and nitroglycerin charges were attached to the baggage car safe. Again as the blast roared passengers sought to leave the coaches but two bandits, detailed along side of the train, kept up a continuous fire.

The holdup was staged with all the spectacular effects of a Jesse James adventure. Every action was timed to perfection. Each bandit had been assigned his particular task, eye-witnesses said.

The men, with guns in their hands and hunter's sacks at their belts as decoys, calmly waited at the depot as the train drew up. Many persons observed them but considering they were hunters, did not report the guns.

Heavily Loaded

The train, known as the "payroll train" because it carried the weekly payroll money for scores of industrial iron and coal plants in the vicinity of northern Indiana, was unusually heavily loaded today, officials stated.

Squads of police from a dozen cities rushed to the district and blocked all roads leading away from the scene.

The bandit car, a brilliant yellow, sped toward Blue Island, Ill., after the robbery.

Meager reports did not state the damage to the train except to say "heavy." It was not known whether or not guards and express clerks were attacked or injured.

When the blast roared two of the bandits dashed into the wrecked car, seized bags of registered mail, containing payrolls for large industrial concerns in northern Indiana, and tossed them through the smoke to their companions who waited alongside in a high-powered motor car.

Noise of the explosion which was heard for miles brought police to the scene as the last sack was hurled into the roaring automobile.

The chief of police and one other officer opened fire as the bandit car got under way. The bandits returned the hail of bullets from their sawed off shotguns.

The robbers' automobile soon outdistanced the decrepit machine of the police department and sped toward Blue Island, Ill.

The same train, containing almost a like amount of money was held up by bandits at the same place two years ago.

A quick checkup of the amount of money contained in the baggage car revealed that the bandits had made away with approximately $100,000, overlooking $200,000 in another baggage car.

G. O. P. RACE OPENS, CANDIDATES GET IN

Willis, Hoover and Ross Qualify for Entrance in Primaries

votes on roll calls while balloting for a Republican presidential nominee, the G. O. P. delegation from the Buckeye State will comprise seven delegates-at-large, 44 congressional district delegates, seven alternates-at-large and 44 district alternates.

The Democrats, apparently, will have no presidential preference ballot. The Democratic primary ballot will be limited to the names of 104 candidates for delegates and alternates who will comprise the Ohio delegation to the Democratic national convention at Houston, Texas. The delegation will be entitled to 44 votes. All the Democratic candidates are pledged to support former U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene, Cleveland, for first choice, and former Congressman George White, Marietta, for second choice, on initial roll calls for the Democratic presidential nomination. The delegation will comprise eight delegates-at-large, entitled to a half-vote each, and 44 congressional district delegates, with one vote each, eight alternates-at-large and 44 district alternates.

Pledged to Hoover

All of the Hoover candidates for delegates and alternates are pledged to support Hoover for first choice and James R. Garfield, Mentor, son of the late President James Garfield, for second choice. While all of the Willis candidates are pledged to Willis as their first choice, 34 of the candidates for delegates-at-large and district delegates selected former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, Illinois, as their second choice, eight selected U. S. Senator Charles Curtis, Kansas, as their second choice, and nine designated Charles R. Fisher, Wilmington, Ohio, retired newspaper publisher and banker, for second choice.

Among the Willis candidates for alternates-at-large and district alternates, 28 indorsed Lowden for second choice, 13 favored Fisher, and one supported U. S. Senator James Watson, Indiana.

Out of all these Republican and Democratic first and second choices, Willis, Hoover, Lowden, Watson and Curtis are the only ones who have actively entered the race for the presidential nomination.

Plan Heavy Campaign

Supporters of Gov. Vic Donahey here today openly manifested their hope that, after a few complimentary votes are cast for Pomerene at the Democratic national convention, the Ohio delegation will throw its votes to Donahey for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Republican and Democratic delegations will each include two delegates and two alternates from each of Ohio's 22 congressional districts.

The leaders of the Willis and Hoover camps today were preparing for a strenuous pre-primary campaign in Ohio. It was pointed out that the preferential vote next April will not be binding upon any delegate. The sole purpose of this "straw vote," as political leaders styled it, is to afford Buckeye State voters opportunity for free expression of their personal choice of a candidate for president.

Forty-four district delegates, 44 alternates, seven delegates-at-large, and seven alternates at large filed notice of their candidacy late yesterday.

Willis Candidates

The aspirants to candidacy as announced from Senator Willis' headquarters here, were as follows:

Delegates-at-large: Col. Carmi Thompson, Cleveland; Sen. Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs; Wilms Sinclair Levan, Steubenville; E. W. Edwards and A. Lee Beatty, both of Cincinnati; Fred W. Warner, Marion, and Col. Edward Vollrath, Bucyrus.

Alternates-at-large: Charles Brand, Urbana; Mrs. Amasa Mather, Cleveland; Mrs. Viola D. Romans, Columbus; Scott Wehe, Columbus; J. W. Meyers, Hamilton, and Clayton Tetrall, Clinton County.

Eighth District— Delegates, Ralph D. Cole, Findlay, and Ben R. Connors, Ada. Alternates, John H. Clark, Marion, and James R. Hopley, Bucyrus.

Hoover Candidates

Candidates announced by Secretary Hoover were:

Delegates-at-large: Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland; Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati; Rev. E. W. B. Curry, Springfield; Mrs. Hugh Clark, Steubenville; W. W. Farnsworth, Waterville, Lucas County; Gen. Edward Orton, Jr., Columbus, and Frank A. Brown, Chillicothe.

Alternates at large:

Homer C. Price, Newark; E. C. Lampson, Jefferson; Herbert Mooney, Woodsfield; Leroy H. Godman, Columbus; John H. Cassel, Cleveland; Mrs. Carl H. Hanna, Cleveland, and Katherine Kennedy Brown, Dayton.

Eighth: Frank E. Hoy, former sheriff, Findlay, and H. B. Hane, Marion, delegates; Capt. V. M. Peck, Cardington, and Fred C. Miller, Galion, alternates.

$55,000 Sought in Three Suits Filed in Court Here In Oil Well Controversy

Frank G. Ulsh, Claridon Township Farmer, Brings Action Against Buckeye Supply Co., Marietta, and Former Holders of Lease

Another round was started today in Common Pleas Court in the legal battle over Marion County's only oil field when Frank G. Ulsh, owner of the land in Claridon Township, where oil operations have been in progress for a number of years, brought three suits in which he asks judgments totaling $55,000 against leaseholders.

In one of the actions, brought against the Buckeye Supply Co. of Marietta, the present leaseholder, Ulsh asks $50,000 damages which he claims is due for loss of oil through careless and inefficient operations.

In the same petition, Ulsh asks for a temporary injunction restraining the Marietta company from removing casings, pipes and other equipment and from shutting off the supply of natural gas to his dwelling. He asserts that under terms of the contract, he is to receive the gas service without charge.

Second Suit

Judge Scofield granted the temporary injunction and fixed bond at $500.

In a second suit against the Buckeye Supply Co., Ulsh seeks judgment for $2,000 for alleged failure of the company to operate and properly care for two wells on his land. In failing to continue pumping and to keep the wells in proper condition, the company has violated the law regulating oil leases, Ulsh states.

Judgment for $3,000 is sought in a suit against Morris Yabrove and Harry Kurchick, who held the lease at one time and later transferred it to the Marietta company.

The claim against Yabrove and Kurchick is based on the chage that in December, 1923, they drilled a well on the Lowe S. Irey farm, about 300 feet from the Ulsh land, and shot it with a charge of nitroglycerine of such proportions that the well was wrecked and flooded. Water and other foreign matter entered the oil-bearing sand and rock and greatly decreased the supply of oil from the Ulsh land, it is alleged.

Cites Production

Ulsh states that Yabrove and Kurchick failed to plug up the well as required by law and as a consequence they are liable to the legal penalty for damage to his property.

In his suit for $50,000 damages, Ulsh says that since operation of the wells started in 1917, there has been an oil production totaling in excess of $100,000.

Oil prospecting in the eastern part of the county began shortly after Aug. 10, 1916, the date on which Ulsh entered into a contract with Silas T. Doyle of Caledonia, granting Doyle oil rights on the land, consisting of 174 acres, the petition states. Doyle is named as a party defendant in the suit along with the Buckeye Supply Co.

Doyle transferred the lease to the Caledonia Oil & Gas Co. and the work on the first well was started Nov. 1, 1916.

On July 28, 1923, the company transferred the lease to A. Lat'roix and shortly afterward he turned it over to Yabrove and Kurchick.

Ulsh started his first suit several months ago in which he sought to enjoin the Buckeye Supply Co. from removing the oil equipment, asserting that under terms of the contract it is his propery. Judge Scofield recently decided in favor of the court of appeals. J. W. Jacoby is attorney for Ulsh.

Sues for Divorce

Lillian Breakey brought suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court today against Harry Breakey, in which she bases her plea for a decree on grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty.

She charges that on Nov. 21, 1927, Breakey deserted her, leaving her without means of support for herself and five children. Since then, she states, she has been forced to place the children in the care of other persons and is working for her own support.

Ages of the five children range from five to 15 years. Mr. and Mrs. Breakey were married in Zanesville April 18, 1912, according to the petition, which was filed through attorney H. E. Johnson.

Seeks Judgment

Judgment for $193 on six promissory notes is asked by F. L. Stevens in a suit brought in the Common Pleas Court today against G. C. Wall. The notes were given to the Brenard Manufacturing Co., of Iowa City, Ia., for the purchase of merchandise and were later endorsed over to Stevens.

The law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser represents the plaintiff.

Files Answer

O. C. Howser, one of the party defendants on the suit of the Terry Provision Co. against John Fellmuth and others, filed his answer today in which he denies allegations made in the petition and asks for dismissal of the action.

In the same suit, John H. Bender filed an answer and cross petition asking judgment for $255.68 on a claim for meat sold to the defendants. He also requests appointment of a receiver.

The litigation involves a meat market located at 299 Pearl-st. The Terry Provision Co. and Bender charge that ownership of the business was transferred without due notice to the creditors.

O. C. Howser is represented by the law firm of Guthery, Strelitz & Guthery and John H. Clark is attorney for Bender.

Supplemental Petition

In a supplemental petition filed by the Newark Trust Co. in its suit against Gertrude A. Baker, it is stated that the original deeds have been produced for properties involved in the action and that these documents clear up disputed points regarding description and ownership.

Marshaling of liens is sought in the Trust company's action.

Marriage licenses have been issued to Elisha Banks, 21, railroader, Portsmouth, and Mary Alice Weston, 16, Marion; I. K. Dunlop, 28, concert singer, Oklahoma City, and Allene Lawrence, 26, musician, Marion.

COUNTY AND CITY TO SEEK JAIL CONTRACT

Agreement Probably Will Provide Charge of 75 Cents Per Day

for setting up accounts of the last few years, it was reported at the commissioners' office.

It is estimated that the city owes approximately $5,300 for board of prisoners housed at the jail since approximately three years ago. When the account was brought to the attention of City Solicitor George T. Geran several days ago, he indicated that the city would refuse to pay until an account of $1,300 alleged to be due the city hospital was paid by the county.

The county owes this amount, city officials assert, for hospital service given a man who was shot by a former sheriff several years ago. The county up to this time has refused to pay the bill, maintaining that the city should collect from the former sheriff's bondsmen.

Would Credit Amount

In order to effect a complete and amicable settlement, the commissioners state, they have agreed to give the city credit for the amount of the hospital bill by applying it as part payment on the jail board account.

City Solicitor Geran, the commissioners say, has agreed to submit the terms to City Council and recommend that council vote for acceptance.

field, it was said, was to discuss the invention with officials of the Guggenheim Foundation.

No mention of capitalization of the Hendershot invention has appeared. It is considered likely Ford engineers have been advised of Hendershot's progress, but whether Edsel Ford, who has conferred with Lindbergh in the last few days, has discussed the motor model with him was not announced.

Henry Ford's trip to Florida to visit Thomas Edison came in for speculation in connection with the reports on the invention.

The importance of a fuelless motor in all ramifications of the motor industry at once suggested itself to persons who discussed the Hendershot model.

"Save us in crucial hours of debate," urges Dr. Glenn Frank, "from saying things that will "take" when we should be saying the things that are true." The idea's good, Glenn, but right in a presidential primary campaign is an awful time to attempt to popularize it.

King George remarked upon seeing an electric stove in an exhibit at the British industries fair at Birmingham: "I wish I had one of these in my room in Buckingham palace. The room is very smoky," as a result of the fact that it is heated by an open fireplace. We are wondering how many American wage-earners would be content to occupy a room with a smoky open fireplace.

For Highway Beautification.

In line with its program for the beautification of the city, the local real estate board is considering a plan for the beautification of the Delaware road for a distance of at least half a mile and possibly a mile south of the city. The plan, of course, is contingent upon securing the consent of the land-owners along the highway. The proposal being considered is that of planting a climbing rose, Boston ivy, clematis, or all of them, at intervals of 100 feet on the fences, thus, by staggering the plantings on both sides of the road, making little beauty spots every fifty feet along the roadway, the idea being to give motorists a pleasing impression of the city they are about to enter. If the proposal becomes an actuality and proves effective in accomplishing the end sought, the plan is to adopt the same plan along the other approaches to the city.

It may be assumed by some that such a plan as this being considered is lacking in merit, but those who so assume are decidedly in error. Such things do count with the traveling public. It is always the little things, rather than the big, which lead to the forming of impressions concerning a city. The big things are so manifest that they virtually say to the traveler: "We are here to attract your attention and make a good impression upon you. Look at us and be charmed." And so contrary is human nature that, instead of being charmed, it leans the other way. "Crude stuff" is the thought of the traveler.

We may be in error, but we do not believe that one who considers the proposed plan only as it is put into print can appreciate its effectiveness; that appreciation to the full is possible only after one has entered a city or village with an approach beautified by foliage and bloom, an experience which may have been realized by some of our readers.

Talking Dogs.

A day or two ago we made paragraphic reference to Princess Jacqueline, the talking French bulldog belonging to Mrs. Mabel Robinson, of Bangor, Maine, which proved the principal attraction at the Eastern Dog show held in Boston this week.

Princess says "Hello" when greeted. She says "out" when she wants out. She has been taught to spell out orally "ball" and "Bangor." Asked what she rides up and down in, Princess will answer "Elevator," and according to her mood she says: "I will" or "I won't."

Speaking of Princess Jacqueline, Frank Dole, the noted New York authority on dogs, said in an interview upon his return from Boston: "I have been a doubting Thomas on this sort of thing, but this dog is the most remarkable of its kind I ever saw."

And now comes another talking dog. Hardly was the ink dry on the Dole interview in one paper than out comes another paper with the announcement of the discovery of a second talking dog, one right in Dole's home city. In fact, it was the Dole interview which caused the mother of the owner of the second talking dog to ask that experts be sent to her apartment to try out her son's dog, which she claimed was a better talker than the French bull.

The second talking dog is a large, gentle, mouse-colored Great Dane, called Boulderwall, the property of Stuart W. Tompkins. Boulderwall is accustomed to talk, not upon request, but when she has something to say. She says: "How do you do?," "Thank you," "I am much obliged," "I am very grateful," "I won't" and "I want to go out." If she wants her master she says: "I want Willard." If it is her master's sister she seeks, she says: "I want Henrietta," and she always greets the latter with "Hello Henrietta."

Without instruction at first, Mrs. Tompkins said, the dog began to say "wah-ar" which meant water. As she grew older the tone became stronger and more vibrant and at the same time her vocabulary increased.

When Stuart Willard Tompkins went to Honolulu some months ago the family was reminded of his departure more often than need be by the sad voice of Boulderwall, who went about whining, "I want Willard" from morning till night, Mrs. Tompkins said.

Of course, the scientists are liable to come out and tell us that a talking dog is an impossibility. But parrots can be taught to talk and so can crows. Probably the most of us can recall the clown in the circus with the pig which cried: "Ma-ma!" Why not a dog? No doubt hundreds and thousands of dog owners will endeavor to teach their dogs to talk as a result of the stories about these two dogs, and the efforts of the great majority of them will probably prove vain owing to the vocal cords in the average dog's mouth not being well adapted to articulation, but there is no reason why occasionally an exceptional dog may not be found.

But when all is said, we are not so sure that a talking dog would be an asset to a home. In some homes it might prove a positive liability.

Members of the house of commons cheered when Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill uttered a crisp "No!" in response to an inquiry by a Conservative member as to whether he would consider the possibility of approaching the American government and seeking its assent to a change in the war debt pact. The British may grumble a bit at times, but they are not welshers.

"The World' Greatest Newspaper."

Because it was through a want ad run in its columns that a young woman nurse was enticed into a house and became the victim of a vicious assault, the Chicago Tribune assigned one of its reporters to the running-down of the criminal, which was accomplished this week after a chase of six months, the arrest being made in Kansas City, Kansas.

In assigning the reporter to the case and instructing him to devote to it his energies until the criminal was run down, the Tribune management announced it had been decided that a precedent should be established against the fraudulent use of its advertising columns.

The reporter wrote something like 700 longhand letters, sent out 3,800 circulars to the police chiefs of the country, wore out two automobiles, using one of them 2,800 miles in trips around Chicago's black belt alone, and expended something in excess of $5,000. He got his man through information brought about by the uttering of the circulars, but he gives credit for the capture to the Chicago and Kansas City police.

One is inclined to smile at the Tribune's claim that it is "The World's Greatest Newspaper." One familiar with it is inclined to consider it a paper of opinions rather than news, and it is not possible for any paper of Tribune's marked prejudices to be really great, but there can be no question but what it has shown itself great in this instance in the protection of its advertising columns.

The announcement of a $60,000,000 bonus for shareholders of Courtauld, Ltd., artificial silk makers, caused the shares of that corporation to rise on the London stock exchange $65,000,000 inside of ten minutes, yet the shares were not, in fact, a bit more valuable than they had been before the announcement was made, even if stock gamblers can not be made to see it.

POETRY.

The lyre to which a Solomon
Tuned his great Song of Songs,
The harp to which a Sophocles
Poured forth his tragic wrongs,
A carillon of lofty bells
Whose changes Homer rung,
An amorous lute to whose low strains
Sappho has often sung,
A reed on which gay Villon piped
Though prison walls were cold,
The drums to which Shakespeare decked out
His mummers in their gold,
The deathless trumpet Milton blew
When all was dark below,
A bugle on the hills of Rome
Sobbing a Dante's woe.
The immortal voice of every age—
A matchless, minstrel strain—
Whose chords of sweetest melody
Are muted chords of pain.

Man with Hoe Not Burdened.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

This is a beautiful day. I am on a train between Pittsburgh and Washington. The sun shines brightly and I long to be out on the hills instead of in this car, comfortable as it is.

I sometimes wonder if country people enjoy their privileges as they should. Born on a farm, I know the disadvantages of farm life as well as its attractions. Its monotonies, its isolation, its hard, seasonal labor, its unfair economic conditions—all these I am familiar with, of course.

But modern invention has done much for the farmer and his family. The automobile, the telephone, the rural mail delivery, and, particularly, the radio—these have revolutionized farm life. The church, the movie, the shops, the relatives, are all within easy reach.

Cheap electricity and its transmission throughout the farm sections will be the next step to improve farm conditions. The electric dish-washer and ironer and churner and sewing machine will lighten the labor of the farm house.

The other day I had a visit with one of my cousins, the housewife in a real country home. She is a famous cook, the old-fashioned glorious kind.

To my amazement, my cousin was in rhapsodies of delight over an electric stove just installed. She had taken to it as a duck does to water.

No more wood to fetch, no more fires to build, no more smoky flues, no more uneven temperatures—here is a device that makes baking scientifically perfect. There, in effect, were the enthusiastic utterances of Cousin May.

I am in favor of each and every invention that will lighten the labor and add to the joys of the farm women. They have had the hardest of lives and because of sacrifices deserve all that science can do to help them.

Yet, do you know, you couldn't get one of them to admit that the farm life is anything but perfect? They glory in tribulation, and we love them for their spunk.

But whether they welcome my interference or not, I want to urge all farmers to turn aside from corn and turnips for the moment and take a look at the farm kitchens.

Wouldn't it make the room a lot pleasanter if it had another window? You and the boys could cut the space and fit the frame. The sash can be found at the lumber yard. Make it right, so there won't be a lot of cold air rushing in around it.

What about the well and the cistern? Are the pumps in the kitchen, or on the kitchen porch? It doesn't cost much to connect up the water supply and to place the pump in a convenient spot. It will save "Ma" and the girls a lot of discomfort and hard colds to have the pump indoors.

Have you thought of damming up the stream or putting a reservoir at the spring, so water can be piped to the house? I did that and we have just as comfortable bathrooms at the farm as we do in town.

Perhaps the kitchen chimney needs to be cleaned or a new stove installed. You may be told, "it is good enough," but don't you believe it. You will get a lot of new dishes, pies and things, if the stove works just right.

Help to lighten the labors and thus to improve the health of the good housewife. She will live years longer if you do this and will be happy to think you have her welfare at heart, as of course you have.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

O'S. Q—I have had pneumonia, was quite sick, in the hospital, had pleurisy and my side still bothers me when I do any extra work. If I press my back against a chair there seems to be a heavy beating or pounding in the side. Could this be a heart condition and can it be overcome—my doctor says it will disappear as my health improves? Should I remain indoors now that the weather is cooler or should I go out as much as possible? If I remain indoors should I wear heavy clothing—or wear lighter ones covering them with heavy coat, etc., when going out?

A—Avoid undue exertion of any kind until you are completely well and strong again. Examination will determine whether or not your heart requires treatment; follow you. doctor's advice. Go out every day in the fresh air and sunshine and do not burden yourself with too much clothing. Wear lighter clothing when indoors and heavier ones when out in the air. Keep your home heated and have plenty of fresh air at all times.

M. P. Q—Can you suggest a sanitarium or hospital in either Denver or some nearby town in Colorado, where I could take my tubercular wife and where I could earn enough to pay both our expenses?

A—Make inquiry at one of the large hospitals in your own city or at your local board of health, where I feel sure they will be able to advise you along these lines.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

THE AMERICAN IDEA.

There is a welter of new and surprising propositions on the League of Nations board at Geneva—Japan's move for a revision of arbitration schemes, Finland's demand for the mutual financing of war crises, Czechoslovakia's resolution calling a halt on armaments pending the completion of the work of the preparatory commission, the soviet plan for a hard and fast disarmament convention, and so on; and amidst all this fog of propositions shines the clear light of the American all-around-the-world arbitration treaties, which seem to strike all the nations as the real solution of the problem of international peace.

If the people of the United States possess any national faculty which will be of advantage to the whole world in such a situation as the relations of the organized governments now presents, it is their talent for straight business-like procedure. The business now to be done by the nations is a plain man-to-man achievement of a peaceful settlement of troublesome questions and relations. America sees, and says, that such a settlement, which is infinitely less costly than the arbitrament of war, can not be attained through any super-government. The moment that a super-government appears in the field, every nation at once begins to figure on circumventing it. But if parties in interest everywhere agree upon an appeal to peaceful settlements out of court, recognizing the frightful expense of warlike solutions and the superior advantage of peaceful solutions, the way is at once made clear for a reasonable assurance of the elimination of war.

That is the idea contained in such mutual arrangements as the one already consummated between the United States and France and in the other arbitration treaties now in process of negotiation between the United States and other countries. The European statesmen appear to like the idea. The leadership of America in this matter may be quite joyfully accepted, as against the super-governmental schemes which are being submitted at Geneva. Such leadership involves no entanglement of America in European affairs, nor any European entanglement in our affairs. It is the common-sense business solution, menacing no country's independence, but, with good faith all around, reducing danger of war to an absolute minimum.—Boston Transcript.

RECKLESS INCITEMENT.

Striking successes in the defending of criminals have made Clarence Darrow perhaps the most noted figure in that branch of the legal profession. Also they have given wide currency to his radical opinions, in which he pictures lawbreakers not as enemies of society but as its victims.

That doctrine may be debatable, but in a recent expression the eminent counselor carried it a little too far. On Monday a crowd of anti-Fascist Italians met in New York to celebrate the acquittal, through his advocacy, of two of their race on charges of murdering two members of the Fascist group. As the guest of honor Mr. Darrow said he would have defended the men even if he had thought them guilty, and that he took the case because he "detested Mussolini." It seemed reasonably certain, he went on, that the murdered men were slain by anti-Fascisti, but even so the killings were provoked. Then he continued in this astonishing manner:

"It is hard for people to get justice in this country, especially if they are poor. The state is well equipped with detectives to get evidence, no matter how, and with lawyers to present it. The courts generally are willing to believe beyond an unreasonable doubt that if a man has been indicted he is guilty. In America nearly all the rich are for Fascismo, because it means security for loaning and trafficking in money."

Mr. Darrow's defense of the accused men was a legitimate performance of professional duty, although his cynical explanation of it does not reveal the strongest convictions or the highest motives. But his resort to abuse of American courts and to the incitement of contempt for American justice was deplorably ill-judged and ill-timed.

Such rhetorical extravagances might be excusable in a congressional hearing or a formal debate in a bar association. But delivered at a mass-meeting of foreign-born citizens engaged in an alien feud their purport was essentially mendacious and their utterance recklessly dangerous. — Philadelphia Record.

POSSIBLY NOT SO DULL.

Harrison Fisher thinks that the Venus de Milo would lack appeal for modern men and women if she were to become flesh and blood because she has "supine, submissive qualities," is fat, is not young, and is not intelligent. Mr. Fisher is evidently "sold" on the immature, skinny, impertinent type, and he seems to forget that a stupid woman can frequently twist a clever man around her finger if she has the disposition. Also, that pose of the de Milo somehow suggests that a person might find something not altogether guileless lurking in the lady's eye if it were possible to look past the opaqueness of the marble. And as to age. The idea of objecting because a woman is old in these days when grandmothers are flappers.—Detroit Free Press.

Thoughts on Vibration.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Heat is a rapid, invisible, vibration of the constituent molecules of a body, and this vibration may transmit itself to surrounding bodies, or to a gaseous medium like air, by causing their molecules also to vibrate in unison. The "burn" that a hot iron inflicts upon the hand touching it is a result of the intense vibration of the molecules of flesh induced by contact with the quivering molecules of the iron. In their resulting agitation the molecules of the flesh are torn apart, their physiological organization is broken up, and a "wound" is produced. The energy of the excited iron shakes its molecules so fiercely that they set the surrounding ether into corresponding vibrations called lightwaves, so that the iron glows with a red color. Yet even then the molecular vibration does not suffice to disintegrate the solid iron as it disintegrates the tender flesh to which it is transmitted.

But the intensity of the vibration may be increased by continued "heating" of the iron until the molecules so far lose their grip upon one another that they begin to glide about, and then the rigid bar suddenly collapses into a blazing-hot, flowing liquid. It is even possible to make the vibration so great that the liquid is thrown into iron vapor. That happens naturally in the sun, where clouds of iron are more numerous than clouds of water vapor in the atmosphere of the earth.

But heat exists not only in what we ordinarily call hot bodies or substances, but in such things as snow banks and ice-cream. When a spoonful of ice-cream tingles on your tongue, or perhaps causes a momentary spasm in your throat, what happens is that your warm tissues are supplying higher vibrations to the molecules of the ice-cold substance, which shake them apart so that they "melt," while the reaction upon your mouth and tongue causes a lowering of the vibration rate and a momentary stiffening of the tissues, which may even have a painful effect.

But there is abundant molecular vibration in the ice before any external heat is supplied to it. A creature made of ice would feel the effect of the waving of a human hand over him as we feel the gush of sunshine when a cloud passes off. And this ice man would, in his turn, be a very warm companion for another creature made of a substance colder than ice. Into the world of absolute zero he would drop like a red-hot bomb.

So, we see that we not only dwell amidst endless vibrations, but that it is by vibrations that we live. We are made up of vibrations. Life is like a musical note cast off from a trembling string. It goes vibrating through space-time, catching and responding to other notes, stealing and giving harmony, until it is thrown out of its adjustments by some too powerful, too discordant, influx of the universal energy. We all are confined to our wavelengths—men, microbes and suns. All life is genial, for its keynote is heat.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Feb. 25—Stiver's row is the Mayfair of Harlem's Black belt. It is a row of fine homes, originally designed by Stanford White, on 139th street, running westward from Lenox avenue and offers an aristocratic area perhaps never achieved by colored people the world over.

Here may be found the creme de la creme or perhaps the cafe au lait of Harlem's sepia society. There are homes where butlers in uniform answer the ring at the door. And there are maids in white caps and aprons as a part of the household personnel.

Most of the houses have neatly-clipped front yards with iron fences, and one flaunts a porte-cochere. It is one of the few streets left in New York where spreading trees dot the edge of the sidewalk and almost overlap in the middle of the street.

The occupier of one house is a negro said to have made a half million in a kink cure. Along the pavement may be seen mezzo-tinted ladies with their Pekes, Poms and other fashionable kiyoodles. Liveried limousines at the curb are not unusual.

There is a legend it requires an income of at least $5,000 a year to reside on "The Row." Among its residents are the foremost colored physicians and surgeons, voice teachers, authors, stage luminaries and others who have prospered. Florence Mills was preparing to buy a mansion there.

There is nothing gaudy about the section. It is as architecturally and decoratively sedate as Murray hill. On Sunday morning there are silk hats and frock coats and many of the children are in charge of neat-looking nursemaids.

It is on "The Row" that many whites in evening dress are entertained for dinner and which provided much of the local color for the intermingling theme in a recent best selling novel. Yet now and then at the windows will be seen an old mammy type with a bandanaed head or an Old Black Joe with frizzed white hair, seemingly a little bewildered by the change.

New York is notorious for puttering with streets. Somebody in the city administration decides five feet should come off of the buildings on say Fifty-Third street—and the hacking begins. Homes and business houses are upset for a year and so are surrounding streets, but a lot of voters get work and it comes under the head of progress. One can not walk five blocks in New York without finding a street torn up and people, if they ask me, are getting pretty tired of it.

CLARK DITCH BIDS OPENED BY BOARD

Commissioners Expected To Let Contract for Improvement Before Thursday

Bids on construction of the Clark Ditch in Caledonia, an improvement intended to remedy serious drainage difficulties which the village has been experiencing for several years, were opened this morning by County Surveyor C. R. Leavens.

It is expected that the contract will be let on or before next Thursday by the Board of County Commissioners and that work will start immediately.

Due to urgent need of better drainage facilities at Caledonia, the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible, the surveyor said today. It is planned to require completion of the project on or before June 15.

The A. E. Monnette Co. of Caledonia submitted the lowest bid on material, setting a price of $2,078.34. The only other material proposal came from the Delaware Clay Co. of Delaware. Its bid was $2,119.10.

The engineer's estimate on material was $2,204.38.

E. E. Longacre of Marion submitted the lowest figure on labor, filing a bid of $1,588.67. Other bids on labor were as follows:

Pat Tucker, Marion, $1,777.20; Landon Brothers, Marion, $1,798.84; William Marshall, Shelby, $1,594.30; W. E. McClaskey, Marion, $1,602.65.

The engineer's estimate was $1,860.40.

Plans call for tiling and enlarging the ditch, which is 3,650 feet in length and runs through the village of Caledonia, emptying into the Whetstone River.

BUCYRUS WINS FROM GALION 35 TO 28

Crawford County Tournament Opens Play at Bucyrus Gym

Bucyrus, Feb. 25—Seven basketball games were played off on the floor of the local high school gym Friday afternoon and night as the Crawford County tournament got under way.

In the afternoon the preliminary games of the county schools were played and in the night session the boys' and girls' teams of Bucyrus High School met the teams of Galion in the last basketball game of the season.

The local girls won an easy game from the visitors by the score of 28 to 22. The local girls led at the half by the score of 11-10.

The boys' game proved to be a see-saw affair with the Bucyrus team always in the lead but at times with only a point margin. Bucyrus won 35 to 28. Both teams played good basket ball, the Bucyrus playing its best game the first half when they led the Galion team by a score of 22-8. In the second half the visitors almost closed the big gap by a surprise attack of fine basket ball.

This win over the ancient enemy avenges the defeat of the Bucyrus team in a non-league game at the beginning of the season when Galion won by a two point margin.

Lohr, right forward on the Bucyrus team, was the high point man for the game with a total of nine points.

The county tournament brought forth an array of weak and strong teams. Five games were played and the winners of these were to meet this afternoon in the semi-finals and the two winners of the semi-finals will play for the championship of the county schools tonight at the high school. The games played Friday afternoon and the scores are:

North Robinson 14, Whetstone 21; Chatfield 33, Lykens 15; Mt. Zion 67, Leesville 14; Sulphur Springs 42, Holmes Liberty 30; Tiro 23, Whetstone 17.

In the games this afternoon Chatfield was to play Mt. Zion and Sulphur Springs was to meet Tiro.

COUNTY CAGERS AFTER PENNANT

First Round of Morrow County Tourney Is Played at Cardington

Mt. Gilead, Feb. 25—Seven preliminary cage games were staged yesterday afternoon and evening at Cardington as the first step in the Morrow County High School annual basketball tourney. The drawing to determine the first contestants was held in the office of County Superintendent W. A. Stage yesterday morning.

As the schedule stands, Cardington boys will meet Edison boys and Iberia boys will meet Mt. Gilead boys in the semi-finals here this afternoon. In the semi-finals the Mt. Gilead and Cardington girls' teams will meet and Edison will meet Iberia. The finals will also be played here in the evening.

The first game yesterday afternoon was between Blooming Grove and Cardington boys. The Blooming Grove team was trampled under foot by the Black and Red by a score of 56-2 after a game of futile fighting on the part of the losers. Smiley for Cardington made seven field goals and Salisbury made six. D. Marshman scored the lone field goal for Blooming Grove.

This was followed by the Mt. Gilead-Fulton girls' setto, which was a complete victory for the Purple and White who held the Fulton girls to a score of five points while they scored 38. Wieland scored nine field goals for Gilead and three foul goals, a total of 21 points. Sipe scored the solitary field goal sunk by the Fulton Girls.

Cardington Girls then hooked up with the Sparta Girls in the third match, which ended in an 18-8 score in favor of Cardington. Meredith excelled in the scoring by ringing up six field goals and two foul goals. Ault and others on the Cardington team showed good defensive and team work. E. Boyd made the only field goal made by the Sparta Girls.

Chesterville and Edison played the best game of the afternoon in which the Edison boys came out victorious by a 30-8 score. The teams played good ball although Edison excelled in successful shots. Vanscoy piled up 20 points for Edison and Brooks was next with 9. At the opening of the game and throughout the first quarter, the teams ran close. At the end of the quarter the score was 4-6 in favor of Edison.

The first game in the evening was that of Mt. Gilead and Fulton Boys. As was generally expected, the local boys dominated the floor during the entire game. The final score was 43-5 with White, Nesbitt, and Makeever scoring heavy for the locals. Edwards and Coykendall each scored a field goal for Fulton while Bunell supplied the extra points by a foul goal. The Gilead boys displayed good teamwork and excellent pass work during the entire game.

The Edison girls and the Chesterville girls then played the closest game of the day in a 4-6 match which barely entitled the Edisonians the right to battle with Iberia today. Dunn and Hartwell scored the two field goals necessary to complete the Chesterville score, and Bratton, with two, and Stumph with one goal did likewise for the Edisonians.

The final game was the fastest game of the day, between Sparta and Iberia. Ibera won this match by a sudden splurge in the last few seconds. When the time was nearly gone and Iberia was safely in the lead after their final effort, Sparta players began shots from any corner of the floor. The game ended 24 to 21 in favor of Iberia. Clark of Iberia distinguished himself by his clever manipulation of the ball, virtually serving as a forward and a guard at once. He piled up baskets in the last few minutes that placed Iberia out of the reach of her opponents.

Mosach and Bacon were the referees for the tournament yesterday. Steger filled the place of Bacon today.

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

NOW that the last batch of satin hearts has been tucked away in moth balls and we know full well that we positively never can look another cherry in the face, there's nothing to look forward to but the day the Irish celebrate. There's no day, to my way of thinking that offers such a range for originality in social affairs and what's prettier than shades of green for decorative purposes? And when it comes to eats, why there's no limit to the possibilities. Green candles, spriggily greens for garnishes and wiggly-wobbly jello in shades of limpid green. What hostess couldn't revel to her heart's desire? However, if it's a day set apart for the Irishers it is my honest opinion that it is their wishes that should come first, so if you are planning to entertain some real Irish at a real Irish party take this tip. Center the table with an out-size bowl of pig's feet, (not knuckles), potatoes and cabbage, cooked ensemble, and serve with a side of tea.

YOU may thing that much of this verbal wrestling in regard to the thread-worn question of "to keep on bobbing or let it grow" is a lot of hooey but believe me it isn't. It even has an edge on the weather in the popularity contest for conversational fodder, and some have gone so far as to bring forth portraits and busts of Roman dames, famed in song and story for their fatal beauty, in order to settle the question in their own minds. Curling irons and pomade jars were as numerous as combs and brushes on the elaborately-carved vanities of these beauties, who probably won them on wagers made at the arena. Nevertheless they were useful and the coiffures were proof enough that they came in handy. Originality was rampant in the good old days too, and exhibit A in this class was Cleopatra, who could tame wild men but was a poor sparring partner for the asp. Cleo, who had a thin face, heavy features and an aquiline nose, was wont to comb her luxuriant locks forward, divide them into seven strands, twist each into a separate roll and draw the whole back over the top and sides of her head to the nape of her neck. Here the ends were fastened into a small hard knot tied with a fillet, the ends of which were left hanging down loose.

CHAPTER 33

FOR 10, 20, 50 yards the two Malays carried Bob Kingsley down the trail—and no stone moved or rattled beneath their feet. And then they set him down where at a sharp turning and behind another rock he could again command the path above him.

"Now, no more stones, Kafan," he directed; "but find another place like this still farther down. We'll keep on moving in this way as fast as we can."

"Yes, Tuan," Kafan answered.

Bob Kingsley turned abruptly to Tifu.

"Unless I miss my guess," he said grimly, "they'll try some other tactics. In spite of what Nanu said, the logical thing for them to do is to circle around and get down to the beach from one end or other of the cliff, and so cut us off—or else scale the cliff itself with the idea of firing down on the beach from there."

Tifu shook his head.

"It is too far for them to go around," he said, "and long before they found a place where they could go down to the beach, we would be on the Alita. And as for the scaling of the cliff, look upward above your head, Tuan. See! The moonlight shows no wider than thread. And, Tuan, that is not because the walls here lean together, but because, even from the place where we entered, the cliff rises upward to a great height."

"But they don't know anything about the lay of the land around here," Bob Kingsley jerked out. "I'd say it was even betting they'd try one plan or the other."

"Then, Tuan, we are safe," Tifu grunted complacently.

"We'll see!" Bob Kingsley said grimly. "You may be right—but we'll do our cheering from the deck of the Alita! I regret to say I am afraid that it wasn't Chen-shu I hit back there—and Chen-shu won't take this lying down!"

Again Kafan returned, and again the two Malays carried Bob Kingsley in the retreat down the trail—and again and still again this procedure was repeated. There was no sign, no sound to indicate that they were being followed, but their progress was slow nevertheless, for Nanu had in no way exaggerated the difficulties of the descent. The trail became more and more broken; at times it became no more than a narrow ledge upon which there was scarcely a foot-hold; at times again Bob Kingsley, in his semi-helpless condition with fettered hands and legs, had to be lowered down the sheer face of the rock, his body dangling and suspended, while Kafan held him from above and Tifu caught him from below.

But finally they came to the level of the beach and stepped out on the beach itself. And here in the moonlight Bob Kingsley could see the Alita lying at anchor, as Nanu had said, a quarter of a mile out from shore.

Tifu pointed across the short stretch of sand to where, already close to the water's edge, a boat was pulling rapidly in for shore.

"See, Tuan!" he said. "There is Nissan now. And now we will carry the Tuan to the boat."

Bob Kingsley rattled his leg-irons in exasperation.

"Oh, all right! Blast these things—and Richardson!" he growled.

They set him down, then, in the stern of the boat, and as it was shoved off and Nissan began to pull out to the schooner, Bob Kingsley swung around in his seat, and stared curiously behind him at the cliff, whose seemingly strange peculiarities he had not at all clearly understood from either Nanua's or Tifu's somewhat crude attempts to describe them. The cliff rose, he could see now, to an amazing height; yet with every stroke of the oars as the boat got farther and farther away, its height seemed constantly to increase, as though to the original mass magical additions were being made with every second that passed. He frowned for an instant, puzzled over this—and then he smiled a little self-commiseratingly at himself. Of course! For a hundred feet or so upward from the base, the cliff was almost perpendicular, but above that point the trend of it was sharply inward. It became merely a question of the angle from which it was viewed. From the base of the cliff, naturally, the actual top of it could not be seen—in fact, it was just coming into view now, and he was already a good hundred yards out from the shore! And then suddenly his eyes caught something quite other than the now exposed topmost edge of the cliff itself. Silhouetted there against the skyline in the moonlight was the figure of a man. He touched Tifu on the arm.

"Look!" he said. "They seem to have managed it after all!"

Tifu stared at the upper face of the cliff for an instant.

"True," he answered. "But it has taken time. And the Tuan can see now why the beach could not be fired upon from above, for they could not come down the smoothness of the cliff, and the distance out here when at last we can be seen is too great to cause fear."

"True," echoed Bob Kingsley laconically.

The figure on the skyline was joined by another, and from one of these now there came a tiny and momentary red flare, that the distance reduced to the likeness of a match that had been lighted and then almost instantly extinguished again.

"Well, I'm damned!" gritted Bob Kingsley through suddenly clenched teeth—and clapped his iron-linked hands to his shoulder.

"What is it?" Tifu cried out anxiously. "Are you hit, Tuan?"

"A chance shot!" Bob Kingsley laughed shortly. "As you said, Tifu, the range is great, so a half-spent bullet can hardly do much harm! But now a little faster if you can."

"May the curses of the Evil One be upon them!" Tifu roared savagely—and, grasping a pair of oars himself, shouted to Nissan to row with all his strength.

There might have been more shots from the cliff—Bob Kingsley did not know. It was rather queer—only a flesh wound probably. It did not bleed very much, or hurt very much—but he felt slightly nauseated, slightly giddy. And then the nausea passed, but the giddiness remained. He did not know how long it took to reach the schooner's side; but he stood steadily enough upon his feet when they had hoisted him to the deck, and his voice was cool and in control as he spoke to Nanu at the rail.

"Get under way at once, Nanu," he said. "When thats done, you can get a cold chisel and a hammer, and spend the rest of the night getting these irons off me! Meanwhile, where's Miss Lyle?"

"In the cabin, O Master," Nanu answered. "But the Tuan's wound—"

"Nothing to it!" said Bob Kingsley shortly. "Carry on as I've told you. Kafan, give me a hand down into the cabin."

He crossed the deck to the cabin entrance, and Kafan helped him down the steps of the companionway—but abruptly at the foot of these he halted.

Under the swinging lamp, Verna stood facing him across the table. The color seemed to have fled even from her lips, but her eyes were hot with outrage.

The giddiness was returning. He tried to smile. He did not know that he made only a grimace.

"So you have managed to escape from Mr. Richardson, have you?" she cried out hysterically. "I have been praying that he would succeed in recapturing you! Your men said it was not Richardson with whom you were fighting, but I did not, and I do not believe them. The only thing they have told me that I believe, because it is obviously true now, is that this is your schooner. The rest I can see for myself. You have had it waiting here to pick you up on the arrival of the Monotah at Aorn, at which time, I suppose, you had it all arranged in your own mind that your ugly work would be accomplished, and you would be ready to take to your cowardly heels! You brigand! The tales that have been told of you paint you a saint compared with what you really are!"

His lips were dry. He circled them with his tongue. The giddiness was growing worse, his head was spinning like a top. There was whisky there in the stand on the locker. His leg-irons clanked as he shuffled across the cabin. He poured out a half tumbler-ful of the raw spirit and drank it down at a single gulp, and then he turned again to find Verna still watching him—but there was a sudden terror in her face and eyes now.

"Oh, my God!" she moaned—and, sinking down over the table, buried her face in her out-flung arms.

The stimulant did not seem to have done any good. He reached out his manacled hands across the table as though to touch in defiant reassurance the bowed head before him—and drew them back and pressed them fiercely to his temples. He reeled then, and, as Kafan caught him, he motioned toward the deck.

"Air! Get me out into the air!" he said thickly; then, in a sort of self amazed mumble as, with Kafan's help, he stumbled up the companionway: "Can—can you beat it! I—I think—I'm going to faint!"

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

PHILIP VERITZEN is not an athlete. Indeed, I fancy that he takes only enough exercise to keep himself in fair physical condition. Lillian, on the contrary, since her long and terrible illness, has adhered to a rigorous program of exercise, while walking is a favorite diversion of mine. I think nothing of a five-mile hike. It was therefore a refinement of cruelty for my friend to set the pace for the great man upon the hunt for driftwood which she had proposed and keep going until his face was red, his collar wilted, and his usual natty grooming generally spoiled.

That his pride was touched and that he would not falter as long as two women were sharing his tramp, we saw, and I wondered how long Lillian meant to keep up her vendetta. Once I snatched the chance when he was a few feet from us, and put the question to her.

"Till he begs for mercy," she said with a vicious little click of her teeth. "I've got that old goat at just the length of rope I want him, and he's going to trot for awhile, believe me. The only sorrow I have is that he doesn't know why I'm doing it to him. He probably thinks I'm just indulging my own kittenish spirits. But I'm avenging Noel today, and I've got a long score. Look here! You haven't any idea of giving the old hyena an easy way out by quitting yourself, have you? If you have, you might as well order the ambulance for yourself right now."

"I am with you to the bitter end," I told her laughing, "but take care that we don't have to treat a case of sunstroke."

"I'll risk it," she said, but I caught her stealing a furtive glance or two at Mr. Veritzen's flushed face, and I think she secretly was as relieved as I when at one of our trips back to the fire, our arms laden with driftwood, Katie announced that she was "full asleep," and that we were to be ready for dinner in half an hour.

With a hurried word of excuse, my employer walked away from us in the direction of his car, and Otto, who had been helping Jim, hurried after him. When they returned a few minutes later, the famous pedalteer looked as if he had been freshly valeted, his collar had been changed and his clothing restored to a surprising degree of its original nattiness.

"It's a wonder he wouldn't bring his make-up box along and lend it to us," Lillian muttered, but I noticed that she was careful he should not hear the taunt, and guessed that she considered she had goaded him sufficiently for one afternoon.

The other driftwood gatherers were back, and we all made ourselves comfortable hollows in the sand in preparation for the feast. There were beach chairs for those who wished them, and Mother Graham, of course was given the choicest, most sheltered seat where no smoke would blow across her, but most of us preferred to sprawl in the sand.

Three fires were blazing. One of them had been made of the first driftwood, and when it had burned long enough to satisfy Katie's critical eye, it had been permitted to die down. Then the embers had been raked a bit to one side, and new potatoes in their jackets had been carefully buried in the hot ashes, the embers raked back, and another fire built over them. On this was a huge iron kettle of clams, while a similar kettle filled with broiling water was hung over a second fire, by the side of which rested two big coffee pots, and a heap of "roasting ears" of young sweet corn. And like a priestess presiding a sacrifice, Katie squatted before the third and largest fire, intent upon the broiling of the "pirate steak."—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Saturday, which is always a holiday whether it comes in vacation or not. The next regular holiday will be on the Fourth of July, and that don't count because it comes in vacation when every day is a holiday. If it wasn't that a fella can shoot fireworks, if he can get them, on that day it would not amount to anything. But Jubilee was glad today was Saturday, and it was cold enough so that the snow that came down yesterday was not melted.

The horse looks at me kind of nervous whenever I open the door to the stable. He don't want to go out in the country any more and pick up any more chestnut burrs. I don't blame him. Fourth of July is our Country's birthday, and it doesn't come till after George Washington's birthday, because George was born first and so his birthday comes first. I do not have to give Youniss anything on Fourth of July like on Christmas and Valentine Day, and that will be a good thing, because I have not got anything to give her. Women cost a heap of money. It is a wonder that fellas don't have to give them fireworks for the Fourth and a turkey on Thanksgiving. Girls have things pretty easy, but fellas have the best times, because they can climb trees and carry snakes in their pockets and go in swimming raw. I am glad I am not a girl, but I am glad Youniss is, I don't care what Feeble is.

Feeble came in the barn this morning when I was milking the old cow, and the old cow is pretty well fed up on kids and would like to kick one of us through the side of the barn. Feeble picked up the cow's tail and made out like it was a telephone and hollered, "Hello! Hello! Is this the milk depo?" Just then I shot her an eyeful of milk and she staggered back and pulled the cow's tail tight and the cow gave a kick forward that knocked all the milk out of the pail up in my face. Then the cow kicked out backwards so hard that if Feeble had got it I would of had to carry her home to her mother in a paper bag. She said it was all my fault because I squirted her and she was going to go in the house and tell my mother. And she went in.

I stayed out in the barn as long as I dasted, and finely when I went in to strain the milk the crook hadn't told my mother anything. And she looked crosseyed at me and grinned. I wish she was a boy so I could paist her one sometimes. But I am glad she is a girl. But I don't know why.

I went to bed early. My father said he would advise it.

Green Camp Wins County Cage Honors From Caledonia

Morral Defeated For Girls' Title

Star Auditorium Packed with Fans as Championship Games Are Played; Prospect Takes Third Place by Winning Over Waldo Quintet

RESULTS
Green Camp, 19; Caledonia, 12.
Kirkpatrick, 24; Morral, 16. (Girls).
Prospect, 20; Waldo, 16.

BY EARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor

DEVOID of the sensational features that have marked many similar meets, the Marion County Class B basketball tournament was held last night with Green Camp boys and Kirkpatrick girls winning the championships of their respective divisions.

Although the scores were far from being onesided, all teams won by margins big enough to leave no doubt as to the superiority of the winners. An eight point margin was the biggest held by any quintet when the final whistle blew.

Many basketball tournaments have been held in Marion County during the past number of years, but last night's affair found one of the greatest crowds in the history of the cage game packed in Star Auditorium. Every available bit of floor space was taken and those who could not find seats fought for standing room. Financially as well as otherwise the tournament was a great success.

Will Enter Tourney

As a result of last night's games three boys' teams won the right to represent the county in the Class B District tournament at Delaware next Friday and Saturday. Green Camp, champions, Caledonia, runners up and the third place Prospect team will enter the district meet.

At the close of the game Rotary Club trophies were awarded to the title winning boys' and girls' teams. Other teams received basketball trophies from the County Athletic Association and basketballs used in the contests.

This was the second consecutive year that Green Camp has defeated Caledonia in the finals of the Class B Tournament. Last year the Big Blue team won 11 to 7 after a thrilling battle.

It seems to fall to the lot of the Morral girls to hold the candle to the county champions. In the 1926 county classic Morral was defeated by Pleasant, 9 to 8.

Last night Prospect took third place honors for the second consecutive year. Waldo gave them a much faster game than did Martel in 1927. Martel lost, 21 to 2.

Last Game Best

The game for the county championship was the hardest fought contest in the boys' section. It was in this game that Green Camp defeated Caledonia, 19 to 12.

Caledonia put up a great scrap during the entire game but it was in the opening period that each team showed up the best. Close guarding featured the initial period of the fray and only one point was scored by each team.

The Caledonia defense cracked in the second quarter under the terrific drive of the Green Camp five. Another four was collected by the eastern division champs while Green Camp was running its score up to nine points.

Green Camp continued to lead in the third stanza scoring five points while Caledonia collected four. In the final frame the losers outscored their opponents six to five.

Although losing the game, Caledonia may point with a great deal of pride that their team outscored the winners on field baskets. Five field goals and two fouls gave the eastern leaders 12 points while 11 of Green Camp's 19 points were scored through the free throw lane.

The victors presented a well balanced scoring combination with Porter, Furniss and Rush collecting five points each. Lyon was high scorer for Caledonia with six points.

Waldo-Prospect Fray Close

One of the closest contests of the tournament was the game between Prospect and Waldo, won by the former team 20 to 16. Waldo, although unable to head off the Prospect fire, managed to trail along behind allowing but few points to separate them from their opponents.

"Tiny" Johnson was held down by the close guarding of Augenstein being allowed but one basket. This was one of the features of the game.

Solomon was one of the main factors in the Prospect victory. The star forward collected 12 points from five field goals and two fouls.

Gerfen led the Waldo score sheet with five points.

Play Great Game

The Kirkpatrick-Morral fracas proved to be too much Kennedy and Luke for the western Marion County girls. The contest developed into a race between these two forwards for scoring honors. The score of the game was 24 to 16 while Luke bested Kennedy on the scoring proposition, 12 to 10.

Until the opening of the second half, the contest threatened to be a walkaway for Kirkpatrick girls. After leading 12 to 4 at the quarter the victors increased the score to 20 to 6 at the half.

In the third quarter the Kirkpatrick team was held scoreless while Morral scored 10 points. I nthe final period Morral failed to score.

SLEEP MAKING BLOW STOPS SPECTACULAR BOUT IN ROUND ONE

Jimmy Gives Fans Real Treat; Is Outstanding Figure in Division

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Feb. 25—The lightweight division, almost canonized by the deeds of Gans, McAuliffe, Nelson, Lavigne, Welsh, Griffo and other immortals, had its modern idol today, the first since Benny Leonard passed into the limbo of pugilism "forgotten." He is a Lochinvar from out of the west, indeed—a young knight of the mailed fist, with the face of a cherub and the punch of a pole-axe—Jimmy McLarnin by name, and poisonous by nature.

McLarnin qualified beyond further preamble for a title match with lightweight champion Sammy Mandell by knocking Sid Terris frigid last night with a punch so fast as to be quicker than Terris' reaction. Sidney, hit on the chin with a left and a right in the first two minutes of play, simply stood transfixed for a dramatic second or two or two and then collapsed on his face to be counted out. That right hand, the greatest thing this writer has ever seen, was so fast that it defeated the message of the knockout to Terris' brain by at least a full second.

An Overnight Sensation

It was all over in one minute and 47 seconds but a sell-out crowd of some 19,000 had seen what it wanted to see, the making of an overnight sensation who will pack them in and turn them away from now on until further notice. He is the new one-shot man, the latest killer and they devotedly love that kind.

Did Dempsey say he was through? What of it, forsooth? We have our Jimmy McLarnin and we expect to bear up bravely with the situation until a better man turns up, which may not be soon.

Color? Why you just can't help but like him with that puzzler, innocent pan and the harp of Ireland on his green bathrobe.

Tough? Well he took a few sharp ones from Terris during the brief interval of the bout and didn't even look disturbed.

Pride of America Now

Speed? Don't; my cracked lip simply won't stand it. Terris was kangarooing at his best when that left and right went over and—presto—the pride of the east was no more.

And so was the pride of the west, for that matter. The west no longer owns him, in toto. He belongs to all of America now and if you don't think so, you should have been there to see the mugs rush forward to harangue the press row in maudlin glee, while impromptu educators stood up to reenact the knockout just as they had seen it.

I, for one, don't think they did. It was like the old shell game all over again; the hand really was quicker than the eye.

WINS TITLE

Former Marion Man Is Billiard Champion of Summit County

ROBERT DRUMM, former Marion man and brother of Blanchard Drumm, of this city, is the new billiard champion of of Summit County having defeated the 1927 champion recently. While a resident of Marion Drumm was connected with the Marion Billiard Parlor.

Concerning the championship match an Akron paper carried the following story:

'Robert Drumm, of South Akron, Sport Shop, is the new Summit County pocket billiard champion. In the old days that would mean that Drumm is the county's best pool player.

"Drumm lost to J. R. Ferguson, 1927 champion, in a tournament at the J. C. McClure billiard academy, 113 S. Main-st, late last year, being runner-up to Ferguson in the tournament and thus being first entitled to a special title match with the champion.

"In that special match, a 1,000-point affair which was but recently concluded at McClure's Ferguson led until the 600 block, when Drumm overtook him and won going away, by a score of 1,000 to 893.

"The match was declared the best ever staged in a county tournament. Drumm had a high run of 47 and Ferguson had one of 52. Both made many runs of 25 and over.

"W. S. Kelly was promoter and referee of the tournament and special match. Kelly was 1926 county champion.

"William Maglione has challenged Drumm and the latter has accepted. The match will be held within 30 days at McClure's academy."

Compton Cagers Score Third Win

Red and Black Quintet Plays Last Game Before Opening of Class A Tournament at Delaware Next Week; Local Team Looks Good

By TOM BUCHANAN

HARDING High School basketball team closed its pre-tournament schedule last night by defeating Delaware High School cagers, 26 to 17 on the Shovel court.

It was Harding's third consecutive victory since Friday night a week ago when the Red and Black won, 15 to 14 from Shelby on the Star floor. On the following night the locals won from Dayton Steels, 28 to 16. The game last night does not alter Harding's standing in th N. C. O. League as Delaware is a non-league team but the victory does give the team a certain amount of confidence that will mean much in tournament play.

With a victory over Galion, Delaware is a creditable opponent for any N. C. O. League team and Harding won no empty laurels in defeating the college town cagers. Delaware had a good passing game, a good defensive, and but for a little bad luck on baskets might have ended the game with a higher score.

Harding looked as good last night as against Steele a week ago and up to that time that was the best game the boys had played all season. Harding's defense was functioning almost perfectly but the locals also experienced a little difficulty with the looping process.

Uses Eleven Players

Both teams were about on a par so far as acquaintance with the floor was concerned, the locals however had had a couple of practice sessions on the Shovel floor during the week. The game was taken to the strange floor due to the county tournament games on the Star court.

Eleven Harding players saw service during the game, with the game apparently an ice Coach Compton replaced the regulars with a new team near the end of the contest. The Harding starters and the team that played the greater part of the game was the same that showed up well against Dayton Steels and the one that seems to be the best combination the Red and Black coach can put on the floor.

Compton sent Cram in at center, Garrett and Evans at the forwards, and McAninch and Lewis at the guards.

The projecting baskets on the Shovel court gave Garrett an opportunity to play his favorite shot—a dribble under. He made four in that fashion and led the scoring for Harding with eight points. Evans got three in the same manner and was second high. Campbell, Delaware center, tied scoring honors with Garrett. Harding scored only two points on fouls while Delaware netted seven, the most of them.

Rumors Of Consolidation Cause Rail Stocks To Sell Rapidly

FRIDAY RALLY IS FELT TODAY

Trade Reviews Report "Spottiness" in Important Lines of Trade

Markets at a Glance

Railroad stocks, strong; industrial stocks, firm domestic bonds, inactive; foreign bonds, fairly; steady; grains, steady; copper, firm; oils, weak; cotton, firm; rubber, weak; sugar, steady; pig iron, firm; foreign exchange, steady.

New York, Feb. 25—Friday's closing rally in the industrial stocks was carried into the first period today, and further improvement was recorded in prices of the active stocks which bore the brunt of the week's selling pressure. The speculative interest aroused in the railroad stocks was exhibited in the active buying of Wabash, St. Louis Southwestern, Erie, Pennsylvania and other rail shares at one to three points above Friday's close.

Prospects of a realignment of Wabash Railroad in the proposed trunk line consolidations under the Van Sweringen and Loree leadership has brought the stock of this road to the fore as an attractive speculation. The stock has moved up from 54 to above 68 since Friday noon when the first rumors of the possible relinquishing of the Loree grip on this road reached the financial district.

The week-end trade reviews were not very encouraging. Both Dun's and Bradstreet's surveys reportde "spottiness" in the important lines of domestic trade, with a falling off in demand for commodities that are generally moving to market quite freely at this time of year. Continued exportation of gold, with uninterrupted selling of securities by the reserve banks, may operate to restrict the supply of funds for speculatitive purposse in the Wall Street view, and this will force further liquidation of stocks.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 25—Wheat was choppy yesterday, but prices averaged higher throughout the session and final quotations registered moderate advances. The opening was weak, due to lower cables. However, good buying power developed a firm undertone and prices budged sharply when early shorts covered.

Realizing by longs on the upturns was responsible for most of the offerings and brought a reaction of about 1-2c from best prices near the close. Net gains were 5-8@7-8c. March finished at $1.33¾, May $1.34⅝ and July $1.32⅝.

Most of the buying in wheat was on the increasing number of reports of damage to the winter wheat crop in the Ohio Valley states, and unsatisfactory conditions surrounding the growing crop in parts of Europe. Firmness at Winipeg was a factor That market finished 1-2@3-8c higher, and advices said exporters and millers were good buyers of their wheat.

Cash Offerings Light

Aside from the light dip at the opening there was no indication of any influence from bearish factors. Liverpool was due 5-8@1d lower, but their market was sold off and closed 7-8@1 1-4d down. The weakness was caused by easier Canadian and Argentine offerings. Buenos Aires was 1-2c lower at mid-day.

There was nothing bullish about the cash situation. Demand was not urgent and offerings were very light, resulting in a dull market, with sales of only three cars. Basis was unchanged, and prices were 1@1 1-2c higher. Local sales, 13,000 bu. Receipts, twenty-one cars.

Although the corn market dragged, lowest prices were made early in the day, and from that time on the trend followed action in wheat. Locals supported the markets on the breaks and commission houses were fair buyers, but reinstatement of the long lines liquidated the previous day was only evident in a few cases.

Larger receipts than expected at 514 cars weakened prices in the cash market. However, this was only for the poor to ordinary grades. The basis on higher, other grades were 1@3c off, contract grades was unchanged to 1c

Cash demand was active and shipping sales totaled 210,000 bu, while sales to go to store amounted to 250,000 bu. No bookings to arrive were reported. Indications for a continuation of the large arrivals during the next week or ten days caused the corn bulls to go slow. Bradstreets clearances of corn were 312,475 bu for the week.

Cash Oats Strong

While the closing easiness of corn prevented best prices for oats futures being maintained, they showed considerable strength. Cash oats were strong, Lamson Bros. & Co. sold a car of No. 2 white at 60½c, or 4½c over the May price at the time of sale. This price set a new high for the present movement and also for the past two and one-half years.

Local sales, 23,000 bu. Sales to go to store, 100,000 bu.

Offerings of rye were limited and the market easily advanced under the influence of wheat. Nothing new was heard of export business.

BRITISH SUBS ON LONGEST CRUISE

Left Portsmouth, Eng., Feb. 8; Due at Sidney, New South Wales, in May

London, Feb. 25—One of the longest submarine cruises in history is now in progress by two undersea craft that were constructed in Britain for service in Australian waters.

The submarines—the Oxley and Otway—which left Portsmouth, England, on Feb. 8, are due at Sidney, New South Wales, early in May. They will have cruised 13,000 miles unescorted.

The first ports of call were Gibraltar, Malta and Port Said. The submarines are due to reach Colombo, on March 19. After a brief stay they will continue on their way via Delaware, Singapore, Batavia, Koepang and thence to Thursday Island in the Torres Straits, where they will be met by an Australian vessel.

While a cruise of such duration in tropical waters necessarily will be attended with some discomfort for the crew, the boats are fairly large and roomy and represent the very latest in submarine construction.

In a false quarrel there is no true valor.—Shakespeare.

Why Pay More Than Is Necessary?

Does your farm earn you so much money that you like to pay high interest, commissions and bonuses on your mortgage.

By far the majority of farmers can't afford such generosity. Nearly half a million farmers have borrowed more than a billion dollars from the Federal Land Banks so as to get the lowest rate possible and a loan which is adapted to the farming business.

Loans run for thirty-six years, bears 5% interest, and are non-callable so long as semi-annual installments are paid. These semi-annual installments include ½% in addition to the interest for the purpose of killing off the loan at the end of the loan period—Federal Land Bank loans can't be beaten.

URGE COMPROMISE ON FLOOD CONTROL

Leaders Frankly Alarmed Congress May Fail Down on Nation's Promise

Washington, Feb. 25—Almost every important figure in the Coolidge administration—and many outside of it—were bending every effort today to bring about a compromise in the flood control fight.

Frankly alarmed that Congress may fail to make good the nation's promise to protect the Mississippi Valley from another flood as devastating as that of last spring, leaders of all factions indicated a willingness to make some concession.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover's advocacy of the Coolidge compromise and the appearance of the vastly different new flood control plan of the War Department on the same day emphasized the wide variety of views on flood control.

President Coolidge's plan for postponement of a decision on the vital question of local contributions was said to be gaining favor.

Seek Thompson Agreement

Under this plan, Congress would provide the money to set the flood prevention machinery in motion, but would name an economic commission to investigate the ability of the valley states to bear part of the expense.

Representative Madden, Republican of Illinois, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, took the lead in an effort to bring Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago to agreement on a compromise.

As chairman of the Chicago Flood Control Conference, which included prominent figures in the official and financial life of the midwest, Thompson has repeatedly demanded a government pay-all policy. This policy was embraced in the bill of the House Flood Control Committee of which Rep. Frank R. Reid, Republican of Illinois, a close political friend of Thompson, is chairman and author.

Hearing on Plans For New State Road Through Country Is Postponed Indefinitely

Prospects for Early Action on Proposed Highway Running East and West Vanish with Announcement of State Director C. F. Schlesinger

Prospects for early action on plans for a new state road running east and west throught the southern part of Marion County have vanished with an announcement yesterday to the effect that hearing on the project has been indefinitely postponed by C. F. Schlesinger, state highway director.

It was recently announced that the hearing had been set for Feb. 28 and a large number of citizens and officials in Marion County and surrounding territory through which the proposed road is routed had planned to attend.

The State Highway Department, it is announced, has decided not to consider any extensions of the state road system until certain disputed points in the new highway code are cleared up by official rulings. The code was established by the Norton-Edwards law, enacted by the last legislature.

Sought Year Ago

Petition for the proposed new highway was filed about a year ago with the state department by owners of land located along the route, which extends from a point a short distance west of Prospect to the village of Ashley.

It would connect on the west with state route No. 68 where it enters on the Marion-Marysville-rd about a mile from Prospect. At the east it would join with another state road near Ashley, forming a connecting link in establishing a complete east and west state route across the entire state.

The route goes through the village of Prospect east to the Marion-Delaware-rd a short distance below Waldo, then south to Norton and east to Ashley.

Board Notified

First announcement that the hearing has been postponed was received by the Marion County Board of Commissioners yesterday in a letter from H. E. Thomas, mayor of Prospect, who has been one of the leaders in promoting the project.

It is regarded as probable that the petition will come up for hearing before the close of this year and that the road, if granted, may be constructed in 1929.

It was indicated that the petitioners will request a decision at the earliest possible date.

HOPE FOR SOLUTION OF MURDER FADES

Mysterious "Doctor" Being Sought on All Sides; Believed Key to Crime

New York, Feb. 25— Hope for an early solution of the murder of Miss Margaret Brown, 40-year-old governess whose oil-drenched, flame-enveloped body was found late Monday night on a lonely stretch of road near Morristown, N. J., sank to a low level today with the failure of the authorities to make an arrest which yesterday they had indicated was imminent.

Miss Brown

The mysterious "doctor" was being sought on all sides today. He is believed to be the key to the crime. This man had an office in New Jersey, the police were told, or else he was employed in some hospital or sanitarium in the northern part of New Jersey.

A woman, whose name is withheld, informed the authorities she knew the "doctor" and Miss Brown and that she had seen them at road houses and amusement places in New Jersey.

The authorities, meanwhile, refused to make public the complete text of the confession letter mailed by the slayer to the police of Bernardsville, N. J. Two unpublished paragraphs of the letter are said to hold the identity of the "doctor".

An examination of Miss Brown's trunk yielded no new clews and a survey of dives in New York and in Newark "Swamp," or underworld district, failed to show any trace of the slayer. His letter was postmarked Newark and he told the police that he had a car with good tires and that he was "going to drive somewhere—to Hell, I suppose" and indicated that he would kill himself before he submitted to capture.

TWO TAKEN IN RAID FINED AND RELEASED

Vern Pinyard, caught in a raid by the police at his home on N. Main-st early Wednesday morning and who pleaded not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct when arraigned before Municipal Judge Martin, was fined $15 and costs yesterday when he was found guilty.

Blanche Greer, also caught in the raid and who pleaded not guilty to an intoxication charge was found guilty of a charge of disorderly conduct at her hearing yesterday afternoon and was fined $15 and costs. Both paid and were released.

JURY DISAGREES; OUT EIGHT HOURS

Judge Discharges Jurors When They Fail To Reach Agreement in Hand Trial

Bucyrus, Feb. 25—Unable to reach a decision in the robbery trial of Arthur Hand, Toledo, charged with complicity in the robbing of the Commercial Savings Bank of Galion, the jury was discharged here early today and Hand was returned to the county jail, unable to furnish bond. The jury had deliberated more than eight hours.

Hand's vision of immediate freedom glimmered into thin air when the jury disagreed. The case went to the jury Friday afternoon at 4:25 o'clock and the jurors at 12:15 a. m. were still unable to reach a decision.

Friday afternoon was spent with the lawyers' pleas. Hand's plea in his defense was considered a fine piece of oratory. The defense in its plea stressed the fact that Hand was in a dentist office at the time of the robbery, but the state pointed out the fact that Hand's presence in the office was open to a doubt.

The jury for Wilbur Hand, first of the indicted robbers tried for the robbery, deliberated almost seven hours before coming to a decision of guilty. The jury for Harry Zillick spent three hours in deliberation of the case.

Arthur Hand's attorney, C. U. Ahl, has not indicated just what steps he will take but all facts indicate that he will apply for a reduction of Hand's bail from the amount which was set by the court, $25,000, so that Hand will not have to spend the next month in the local jail. The next session of the court is in April.

Immediately after the jury reported its disagreement Arthur Hand rose and thanked the jurors.

A crowd of over 150 people patiently waited in the court room until the jury finally brought in its report.

Hand's brother Wilbur, and Harry Zillick, who were tried on like charges, were found guilty at previous trials, but are at liberty under $25,000 bond each, pending decision of the court of appeals.

CONDITION UNCHANGED

No change was reported today in the condition of O. H. Neimeyer, Prospect, state game protector, who has been ill for the last 10 days.

The road is long from the project to its completion.—Moliere.
